Ultimatum To Support Truce Is Considered

U. S., In Reported Stand, Would Warn Reds Violation Means Air-Sea War On China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The United States was reported tonight to be advising its allies that a Korean armistice—if obtained—should be supported by an implied ultimatum to the Reds. This would put them on notice that all-out air-sea war will be waged against Red China if the truce is violated by new aggression.

Word of this reported stand by the United States circulated in official circles today after American government departments concerned had reviewed the whole, prolonged history of the truce parley and weighed political and military possibilities of the new position.

The United States has made it plain in the Panmunjon talks that its overriding interest is to get all United Nations prisoners who remain alive out of Communist hands.

Ready To Make Concessions

While it intends neither to give any more ground than is found necessary nor to retreat on any points to which the Reds already have agreed, the U. S. is authoratively described as prepared to make certain further concessions if deemed necessary.

There was great official reluctance to discus what form these concessions might take.

From what could be ascertained in diplomatic and military quarters, the American position was apparently taking this form:

1. All United Nations prisoners held by the enemy would be released, with a definite deadline for the prisoner exchange to be completed.

2. The cease-fire line would be the battle front existing at the time of settlement, presumably about where it is now.

Violation Ends Sanctuary

3. If Communist forces crossed that line and broke the truce terms, the war would no longer be confined to the Korean peninsula. Red China, which stepped in to save the smaller Communist satellite state of North Korea in November, 1950, and since has supplied the air power and the bulk of ground forces to continue the campaign, would cease to have the sanctuary she has enjoyed.

4. But the United States would not again be drawn into another stalemate land campaign. Army troops would not be used nor any invasion of the Chinese mainland contemplated.

Instead, a tight blockade of Red China's coast by U. S. air and sea forces, coupled with bombardment of strategic targets within reach of land or sea based aviation or of naval gunfire would be applied.

Weather Delays Efforts To Get Towline On Ship

Tug's Mate Joins Captain On Derelect

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The first mate of the British rescue tug Turmoil boarded the broken freighter Flying Enterprise today to help her lonely captain make fast a towline. But fog, rain squalls and rising winds once again delayed the operation.

The mate, Kenneth Roger Dancy, 27, climbed over the taffrail of the wallowing ship in heavy seas.

He was the first man to be seen aboard by Capt. Kurt Carlsen since the captain ordered his crew of 40 and 10 passengers to abandon the hull-cracked ship in a hurricane seven days ago.

Capt. Carlsen was following a tradition of the sea. He was still in good spirits despite five vain attempts by the Turmoil to throw him a line during the day.

Ship Still Buoyant

The tugboat skipper, Capt. Dan Parker, said he is "confident I can get a tow rigged if we get a break in the weather" now that there are two men instead of one aboard the stricken ship.

Radio messages from the tug and the U. S. destroyer John W. Weeks—standing by to give aid—said the ship had dropped a little more to her side from a 60-degree list and seas were breaking over the exposed main deck and deckhouse. But she still was buoyant and possibly can be towed to Falmouth harbor, 300 miles to the east.

The weeks which has been standing by since early Wednesday, is to be relieved tomorrow by the U. S. destroyer Willard Keith. U. S. Navy officers estimate the Keith will arrive at the scene about 8 a. m. The Weeks is to head for Plymouth, Eng.

Cast Misses By Two Feet

Rear Adm. Walter F. Boone, commander of U. S. naval forces in the Eastern Atlantic, ordered the Keith to change its course from Bordeaux, France, to Plymouth, Eng., to make the rendezvous with the Flying Enterprise. The Keith's master is Cmdr. Leslie J. O'Brien, Jr., a native of Jonesboro, Ark.

Messages from the Weeks said first attempts had been made to pass a towline to Carlsen at the dipping bow of the ship while he still was alone. One heart-breaking cast missed by only two feet. The next attempts, come dawn, will be made at the stern.

Churchill Will Reach U. S. Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—British Prime Minister Winston Churchill arrives here tomorrow for talks with President Truman which may resolve some key Anglo-American differences and shape critical relations of the two Western powers with Russia.

The government, from Mr. Truman down, readied an enthusiastic welcome for the rugged old warrior who at 77 is making this first official visit to Washington since World War II.

American officials said they are convinced his overall purpose is to try to tighten U. S.-British partnership in world affairs through closer understanding at the top. In this they predicted he would be successful.

Churchill is due to make port aboard the liner Queen Mary in mid-morning, hold a brief news conference and then come on to Washington on Mr. Truman's plane, the Independence, arriving about noon.

He will begin four days of talks with Mr. Truman and other U. S. officials immediately, with a luncheon at the presidential residence, Blair House.

Lebanon Apologizes

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Jan. 4 (AP)—Lebanon aviation authorities today apologized to the U. S. legation for forcibly detaining U. S. Air Attache Col. William E. Covington for an hour yesterday.

Five armed guards delayed Covington's diplomatic plane although it had been given clearance by the foreign office.

Steelworkers Delay Strike For 45 Days

USW Awaits WSB Recommendations

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—The CIO steelworkers union bowed today to President Truman's request to delay any immediate threats of an industry-wide steel strike.

The union's specially-summoned convention voted to shelve its walkout plans for a 45-day period starting next Monday, the day the government's Wage Stabilization Board starts hearings in the steel wage case.

The action postpones danger of any stoppage in vital steel production at least until Feb. 21.

By then, it is expected the WSB will have come out with a recommended solution for the union's unsettled demands on the steel industry.

President "Very Glad"

In Washington, President Truman said in a statement:

"I am very glad to hear of the postponement of the steel strike. The nation's defense effort cannot afford an interruption of steel production and I am confident that the postponement will enable the parties, with the help of the Wage Stabilization Board, to reach a fair settlement."

Philip Murray, head of the CIO and the steel workers union, recommended the course of complying with Mr. Truman's plea that the country can't stand any steel production stoppage now.

"In making this decision," Murray told the 2,400 cheering delegates, "we are doing so at the urgent behest of the President of the United States and in the national interest.

Murray Blasts Controls

"We are not abjectly lying on the flat of our faces and surrendering to any interest x x x, and we shall never do so. We are not, and we are never going to forego our right to strike."

The two-day convention ended with the strike postponement resolution.

It provided a forum for airing the union's 20-odd demands on the industry and criticisms that the government was doing a sorry job in controlling prices and living costs.

Murray blasted the controls allowed under the Defense Production Act as inadequate and blamed the steel industry and "special interests" for blocking congressional enactment of more effective control legislation.

U. S. Raps Soviet Truce Proposal

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP)—The United States vigorously opposed tonight a Russian proposal to bring the Korean armistice talks to the U. N. Security Council, fearing that such a move might break up the negotiations now going on in Korea.

U. S. Delegate Benjamin Cohen told a news conference there was no reason to expect greater progress if the armistice negotiations were shifted to a special session of the Security Council, where Russia has a veto. The proposal was made yesterday by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Acheson announced the United States would vote against the Russian proposal. He declared adoption of the proposal would be nothing short of disastrous. Acheson accused Vishinsky of holding out bait.

At the same time, it became known the United States is discussing with several other countries the possibility of proposing a new Korean commission to deal with Korea's future once an armistice is reached. There has been no decision whether Russia would be included in such a commission, which would supersede the U. N. commission now in Korea.

The Americans likely will ask that Russia's Korean proposal be postponed if it comes up in the Political Committee before an armistice has been obtained.

Town, Two Trains And Trolley Line Destroyed By Fire

DETROIT, Jan. 4. (AP) — Fire destroyed a village, a passenger train, a freight train and a streetcar line today.

John Dee was trapped by some in his bedroom when a fire started in his Christmas tree. But he smashed a windowpane and climbed to safety with the following report:

His elaborate miniature railroad and model town layout was wiped out at a loss of $800.

Retail Food Prices Drop 1.2 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Food prices at the grocery store dropped 1.2 per cent between Nov. 26 and Dec. 15 — the first decrease since October, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

About half the foods included in the cost of living index dropped in price. Largest declines came in eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables, pork and chickens. The Dec. 15 index was estimated at 231.9, based on a 1935-1939 average food price index of 100.

The index is obtained by sampling retail food prices in eight major cities.

Bride, 11, Vows To Return To Mate 'When Old Enough'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 4 (AP)—A pretty, little 11-year-old girl came home to her mother after nine days of marriage today but vowed she would return to her coal miner husband "when I'm old enough."

Eva Dean Baggett left Arvil Ott, 23, under pressure from law officials and the humane educational society.

The brunette, who stands just over four feet in height, said she would return to her fifth grade classes at a one-room building on Signal Mountain Monday.

The girl married Ott, who had been a boarder in her father's mountain home since she was six, on Dec. 26 at Rising Fawn, Ga. She and her husband went to a remote mountain cabin before police were aware her marriage license age of 15 had been raised four years.

Notified of her true age by the girl's mother, Mrs. William Baggett, Georgia officials immediately declared the marriage void.

Dade County Attorney Maddux Hales said "a female under the age of 14 is not competent" to marry in Georgia. Probate Judge A. W. Peck said he would turn the matter over to a grand jury. He added he intends to prosecute Ott on a number of counts.

Allies Refuse To Backtrack On Truce Supervision Issue

Deadly Snake Bites Movie Worker

Gloria Cesar, bitten by a deadly water moccasin snake on a movie set at Hollywood yesterday is treated at Santa Monica Hospital by Dr. A. P. Miller and Nurse Twila Hodges. She was bitten in both hands while working as a snake handler in a movie. Doctors reported she was in serious condition but said "we believe they got her here in time."

Defense Dept. Has Balance Of $90 Billions

May Get $50 Billions More In New Budget

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Defense Department still has about 90 billion dollars on hand for spending.

That means the armed forces really won't have to do too much drastic slashing during the next year even if President Truman and Congress grant them no more than 50 billion dollars. This figure, which compares with almost 60 billion voted for the present year, was described today as the top outlay the chief executive will sanction for national defense in the new budget—barring any unforseeable emergency.

In answer to questions, the department said:

1. The unspent balance of funds appropriated by the last and previous sessions of Congress was approximately 90 billion dollars on Jan. 1.

Spending Rate To Rise

2. The monthly rate of expenditure during the period of October through December was about $3,200,000,000.

3. By the beginning of calendar year 1953 the monthly expenditure rate probably will be about five billion dollars.

The 50 billion figure is described as being about what President Truman's advisers outside the Defense Department recommended as the ceiling for military outlay in the next fiscal year. (That is the fiscal year 1953, which begins July 1, 1952.)

$4 Billion Ceiling Favored

The administration's mobilization and economic experts are described as believing an armament expenditure up to about four billion dollars a month might be acceptable. But to pour out money faster than that could produce a grave inflationary hazard, cutting deeply into civilian goods production and spurring still more competitive buying for the scarce goods.

The five billion a month spending rate the department estimates it will reach a year hence apparently will be up in the red danger zone which the mobilization and economic advisers have marked off.

Bulkley To Be Ohio Demos' "Favorite Son"

CLEVELAND, Jan. 4. (AP)—Former U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, backed by the Ohio Democratic organization, will be the state's "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, it was disclosed tonight.

At the same time, Gov. Frank J. Lausche, a Democrat now serving his third term, said he had been offered the "favorite son" candidacy, but had declined it. Lausche said he had "no favorite son ambitions."

Kefauver Says He's Interested In Presidency

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) said tonight he is interested in the presidency of the United States and is "appraising" the situation. He denied he said earlier in the day that he also was interested in the vice presidency.

He said he would announce his plans early in February.

"I have always said I wasn't interested in the vice presidency," Kefauver insisted.

When he got off a plane here today, Associated Press Reporter Tom Poster quoted him as saying:

"I am interested in both the president and vice president jobs and I am studying the situation. I am very interested and that's why I am giving it so much appraisal."

Spence Predicts Controls To Stay

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP) — A confident prediction that Congress will extend price, wage, rent and credit controls came today from Chairman Spence of the House Banking Committee.

He said his committee will start hearings soon—probably by Feb. 1—on extension of the Defense Production Act which contains the basic authorizations for the entire control program. The law is due to expire June 30.

"I think Congress is bound to continue the law," the towering Kentucky Democrat told a reporter. "If controls were taken off and prices and rents were allowed to rise without restaints, I don't know what would happen.

"Although there will be fights over some points of legislation, I feel sure it will be extended. There is vast public pressure for its continuation."

Short And Snappy Session Of Congress Urged By McFarland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Senate Majority Leader McFarland of Arizona urged members of Congress today to aim for a short and snappy sessin in 1952.

"We should transact our business as quickly as we can and get out as soon as possible," the Democratic leader said at a new conference he called after returning to Washington from his home state.

The second session of the 82nd Congress begins Tuesday. The first session ran for 291 days before adjourning last Oct. 20.

Train Crash Injures 38

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (INS) — Two elevated trains crashed on Chicago's south side tonight and at least 38 persons were reported injured, including the motorman of the train, who was trapped in the wreckage for more than an hour.

Price Ceilings Go On Potatoes Starting Jan. 19

Rollbacks Slated, Legislators Say

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — A government order placing ceilings on the prices of white potatoes effective Jan. 19 was approved tonight.

The Office of Price Stabilization said details of the order would not be made public until it is formally issued tomorrow.

Although OPS would not disclose ceilings, Congress members from potato-growing states said it provides for rollbacks under current market prices.

Potato prices have been rising sharply since September. The average price received by farmers has almost doubled in the last year, jumping from about 89 cents a bushel on Dec. 15, 1950, to $1.93 last Dec. 15.

The order signed tonight by OPS Director Michael V. DiSalle sets ceilings at the shipper-wholesaler level, but an OPS spokesman said another order will be issued setting ceilings at retail.

Based on prices of two weeks ago potatoes were selling at 105 per cent of parity—a figure said by law to give the farmer a fair return for what he sells in relation to what he buys.

Under the law, OPS may not place controls on agricultural products until the price equals or rises above parity.

DiSalle signed the potato order after receiving a second protest against it in as many days from Sens. Dworshak and Welker and Rep. Budge, Idaho Republicans. All of them termed the order "arbitrary, confiscatory and discriminatory" with regard to growers of Idaho potatoes, which normally bring a premium price on the market.

Dworshak said he did not think the delegation accomplished much in its protest. He said he understood the order was being issued in substantially the same form it was originally drafted.

U. N. Prisoner Exchange Plan Draws Red Fire

Objections To New Proposal Presented

MUNSAN, Korea, Saturday, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Allies refused flatly today to budge another inch on supervision of a Korean armistice because they said that to do so would "make arrangements for our own destruction."

In a formal statement early Saturday morning, the United Nations command declared that the supervision issue "is the heart of the armistice and the key to the future."

An Allied spokesman, Navy Lt. Walter J. Ellis, Pittsburgh, Pa., added: "In item three (agenda number for truce supervision) the point we are trying to make clear to the Communists is this:

"We did not come here to make arrangements for our own destruction. It is taking time to get this across to them, but eventually they will have to understand it an accept it."

New sessions at Panmunjom were slated for 11 a. m. today (9 p. m. EST, Friday).

No agreement was reached Friday on either the issue of truce supervision or exchange of prisoners. The Reds presented seven objections to the new Allied six-point proposal on prisoner exchange.

In Paris, a United States delegate expressed concern that a Russian proposal to transfer the armistice talks to the United Nations Security Council might break up the Panmunjom negotiations.

Delegate Benjamin Cohen said the U. S. is unqualifiedly opposed to the move. He said Russia's proposal was hard to understand because the Panmunjom talks appeared to be making slow but sure progress.

The Reds have been saying for weeks that any restrictions on building and repairing airfields in North Korea would constitute interference in their internal affairs. The Allies agreed to permit limited reconstruction for civil air transport only.

BACK ON CEASE-FIRE LINE

SEOUL, Korea, Saturday, Jan. 5 (AP) — Positions along the 145-mile Korean battle front returned Friday to almost the identical line of Nov. 27, when U. N. and Red armistice negotiators agreed to a 30-day provisional cease-fire line.

West of Korangpo the Reds still held one hill wrested from U. N. troops Dec. 28. Above Yanggu the Reds held a ridge which the U. N. voluntarily decided to abandon.

Friday, after a nightlong battle, Allied infantry retook Christmas hill. The Reds first took it Dec. 25—hence the name — then were driven off, but took it again Jan. 3.

Warren Will Bypass Ohio In Delegate Bid

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jan. 4 (AP)—Gov. Earl Warren said today he will bypass Ohio in his pre-convention bid for the Republican presidential nomination, but that he "hasn't closed the door" to entering the Wisconsin primary.

In reply to questioning at a news conference, he said he has given no thought to seeking the Republican delegations in such other states as Oregon, New Hampshire and Minnesota.

As for the home state of Sen. Robert A. Taft, also a presidential hopeful, the California governor said bluntly:

"I will not be in Ohio."

Crete's "Juliet" Forsakes "Romeo" After Argument

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 4 (AP) — Crete's modern Romeo has separated from his sultry-eyed Juliet because they could not agree where they should live, his brother said tonight.

Earlier today, the Athens newspapers said Tassoula Petracogeorgi, 20, had fled to the open arms of her father, George Petracogeorgi, liberal member of parliament, after a round of violent scenes with her husband, fiery Costa Kephaloyannis. The romance more than a year ago of the two members of long feuding Cretan families almost sparked a civil war.

Costa abducted Tassoula and married her. He was imprisoned for illegal possession of weapons, but a happy ending appeared in sight when he was freed in November and the couple was reunited.

Separation of the two was confirmed in a message to the Ministry of the Interior from the commander of police at Herakleion, Crete. Tonight, Emmanuel Kephaloyannis, Costa's brother, in a telegram from Crete, said that it was because of Tassoula's insistence that they should settle in Athens and not at Herakleion that the lovers parted. Costa had tried to persuade his wife that it was necessary to live at Herakleion because of his business interests, the brother said.

Roundup Hits Every Major City In Nation

Operation By 250 T-Men Continuing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Government narcotics agents snapped a giant trap on the drug underworld today and seized more than 500 suspected dope peddlers. Every big city in the nation was involved.

Harry J. Anslinger, narcotics commissioner in the Treasury Department, told reporters the mass mopup operation by 250 undercover agents in his bureau will continue throughout the night. He predicted it will deal a staggering blow to the illict drug traffic.

The roundup of peddlers, Anslinger said, is by far the biggest ever staged.

A few underworld giants were arrested today, he added, but more top racket bosses will be captured when a grand jury investigation, now under way, is completed within three weeks.

Asked where the jury probe is centered, Anslinger told a news conference, "if we even mentioned the name of the city, some of the men who are talking will be killed."

No Violence

The commissioner said the raids were aimed at peddlers who have supplied dope for an alarming increase in teen-age addiction, and at veteran offenders who face stiffened penalties under a new narcotics law which makes prison terms mandatory.

Anslinger said the arrested peddlers "are the most dangerous type of criminals," but that the raids were so thoroughly prepared and secretly staged there was no violence.

Each of the arrests, the commission said, represents an actual purchase of heroin or marihuana by Treasury agents who have worked undercover in the midst of narcotic rings for more than a month.

Anslinger predicted "a very sharp drop" in drug addiction and illict dope traffic. He said he couldn't estimate mathematically how crippling the blow will be.

100 Seized In Texas

The raids started before dawn today in San Antonio, Tex., and spread throughout the nation to more than 18 states. Up to 100 alleged peddlers were seized in Texas alone, 50 in New York, 50 in Philadelphia, and 30 in Washington.

Anslinger said the crackdown is tied to a drive to close down huge European sources for drugs sent to the United States.

He said Italian secret service agents are doing "a magnificent job" in prosecuting drug shippers. Anslinger said Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported U. S. underworld king, is under investigation in Italy in connection with the crackdown.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, under whose supervision the narcotics bureau falls, told Anslinger he and President Truman "want to congratulate you and your agents for a fine day's work."

McGrath Denies He Will Resign

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, under fire in connection with scandals in the government, said today he does not intend to leave the cabinet anytime soon.

"No change in my status is contemplated," McGrath told reporters after a cabinet meeting.

He did not say President Truman had authorized the statement, but indications were that some understanding had been reached.

Both Mr. Truman and McGrath maintained silence yesterday in the face of new reports that the attorney general was planning to resign. And when McGrath entered the White House for the cabinet session, he had brushed aside questions as to his future.

When he emerged an hour and 35 minutes later, McGrath was stopped again by reporters. Obviously in a jovial mood, he said "things are not always what they seem on the surface."

"Do you mean no change in your status is contemplated?" a reporter wanted to know.

McGrath agreed with the deduction, and then rephrased the words of the question into a positive statement.

There has been no suggestion that McGrath has been guilty of any wrongdoing, but some lawmakers have contended he has not been diligent enough in administering his department.

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Acheson announced the United States would vote against the Russian proposal. He declared adoption of the proposal would be nothing short of disastrous. Acheson accused Vishinsky of holding out bait.

At the same time, it became known the United States is discussing with several other countries the possibility of proposing a new Korean commission to deal with Korea's future once an armistice is reached. There has been no decision whether Russia would be included in such a commission, which would supersede the U. N. commission now in Korea.

The Americans likely will ask that Russia's Korean proposal be postponed if it comes up in the Political Committee before an armistice has been obtained.

Town, Two Trains And Trolley Line Destroyed By Fire

DETROIT, Jan. 4. (AP) — Fire destroyed a village, a passenger train, a freight train and a streetcar line today.

John Dee was trapped by some in his bedroom when a fire started in his Christmas tree. But he smashed a windowpane and climbed to safety with the following report:

His elaborate miniature railroad and model town layout was wiped out at a loss of $800.

Retail Food Prices Drop 1.2 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Food prices at the grocery store dropped 1.2 per cent between Nov. 26 and Dec. 15 — the first decrease since October, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

About half the foods included in the cost of living index dropped in price. Largest declines came in eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables, pork and chickens. The Dec. 15 index was estimated at 231.9, based on a 1935-1939 average food price index of 100.

The index is obtained by sampling retail food prices in eight major cities.

Bride, 11, Vows To Return To Mate 'When Old Enough'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 4 (AP)—A pretty, little 11-year-old girl came home to her mother after nine days of marriage today but vowed she would return to her coal miner husband "when I'm old enough."

Eva Dean Baggett left Arvil Ott, 23, under pressure from law officials and the humane educational society.

The brunette, who stands just over four feet in height, said she would return to her fifth grade classes at a one-room building on Signal Mountain Monday.

The girl married Ott, who had been a boarder in her father's mountain home since she was six, on Dec. 26 at Rising Fawn, Ga. She and her husband went to a remote mountain cabin before police were aware her marriage license age of 15 had been raised four years.

Notified of her true age by the girl's mother, Mrs. William Baggett, Georgia officials immediately declared the marriage void.

Dade County Attorney Maddux Hales said "a female under the age of 14 is not competent" to marry in Georgia. Probate Judge A. W. Peck said he would turn the matter over to a grand jury. He added he intends to prosecute Ott on a number of counts.

Deadly Snake Bites Movie Worker

Gloria Cesar, bitten by a deadly water moccasin snake on a movie set at Hollywood yesterday is treated at Santa Monica Hospital by Dr. A. P. Miller and Nurse Twila Hodges. She was bitten in both hands while working as a snake handler in a movie. Doctors reported she was in serious condition but said "we believe they got her here in time."

Defense Dept. Has Balance Of $90 Billions

May Get $50 Billions More In New Budget

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Defense Department still has about 90 billion dollars on hand for spending.

That means the armed forces really won't have to do too much drastic slashing during the next year even if President Truman and Congress grant them no more than 50 billion dollars. This figure, which compares with almost 60 billion voted for the present year, was described today as the top outlay the chief executive will sanction for national defense in the new budget—barring any unforseeable emergency.

In answer to questions, the department said:

1. The unspent balance of funds appropriated by the last and previous sessions of Congress was approximately 90 billion dollars on Jan. 1.

Spending Rate To Rise

2. The monthly rate of expenditure during the period of October through December was about $3,200,000,000.

3. By the beginning of calendar year 1953 the monthly expenditure rate probably will be about five billion dollars.

The 50 billion figure is described as being about what President Truman's advisers outside the Defense Department recommended as the ceiling for military outlay in the next fiscal year. (That is the fiscal year 1953, which begins July 1, 1952.)

$4 Billion Ceiling Favored

The administration's mobilization and economic experts are described as believing an armament expenditure up to about four billion dollars a month might be acceptable. But to pour out money faster than that could produce a grave inflationary hazard, cutting deeply into civilian goods production and spurring still more competitive buying for the scarce goods.

The five billion a month spending rate the department estimates it will reach a year hence apparently will be up in the red danger zone which the mobilization and economic advisers have marked off.

Bulkley To Be Ohio Demos' "Favorite Son"

CLEVELAND, Jan. 4. (AP)—Former U. S. Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, backed by the Ohio Democratic organization, will be the state's "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, it was disclosed tonight.

At the same time, Gov. Frank J. Lausche, a Democrat now serving his third term, said he had been offered the "favorite son" candidacy, but had declined it. Lausche said he had "no favorite son ambitions."

Kefauver Says He's Interested In Presidency

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) said tonight he is interested in the presidency of the United States and is "appraising" the situation. He denied he said earlier in the day that he also was interested in the vice presidency.

He said he would announce his plans early in February.

"I have always said I wasn't interested in the vice presidency," Kefauver insisted.

When he got off a plane here today, Associated Press Reporter Tom Poster quoted him as saying:

"I am interested in both the president and vice president jobs and I am studying the situation. I am very interested and that's why I am giving it so much appraisal."

Spence Predicts Controls To Stay

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP) — A confident prediction that Congress will extend price, wage, rent and credit controls came today from Chairman Spence of the House Banking Committee.

He said his committee will start hearings soon—probably by Feb. 1—on extension of the Defense Production Act which contains the basic authorizations for the entire control program. The law is due to expire June 30.

"I think Congress is bound to continue the law," the towering Kentucky Democrat told a reporter. "If controls were taken off and prices and rents were allowed to rise without restaints, I don't know what would happen.

"Although there will be fights over some points of legislation, I feel sure it will be extended. There is vast public pressure for its continuation."

Short And Snappy Session Of Congress Urged By McFarland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Senate Majority Leader McFarland of Arizona urged members of Congress today to aim for a short and snappy sessin in 1952.

"We should transact our business as quickly as we can and get out as soon as possible," the Democratic leader said at a new conference he called after returning to Washington from his home state.

The second session of the 82nd Congress begins Tuesday. The first session ran for 291 days before adjourning last Oct. 20.

Train Crash Injures 38

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (INS) — Two elevated trains crashed on Chicago's south side tonight and at least 38 persons were reported injured, including the motorman of the train, who was trapped in the wreckage for more than an hour.

Price Ceilings Go On Potatoes Starting Jan. 19

Rollbacks Slated, Legislators Say

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — A government order placing ceilings on the prices of white potatoes effective Jan. 19 was approved tonight.

The Office of Price Stabilization said details of the order would not be made public until it is formally issued tomorrow.

Although OPS would not disclose ceilings, Congress members from potato-growing states said it provides for rollbacks under current market prices.

Potato prices have been rising sharply since September. The average price received by farmers has almost doubled in the last year, jumping from about 89 cents a bushel on Dec. 15, 1950, to $1.93 last Dec. 15.

The order signed tonight by OPS Director Michael V. DiSalle sets ceilings at the shipper-wholesaler level, but an OPS spokesman said another order will be issued setting ceilings at retail.

Based on prices of two weeks ago potatoes were selling at 105 per cent of parity—a figure said by law to give the farmer a fair return for what he sells in relation to what he buys.

Under the law, OPS may not place controls on agricultural products until the price equals or rises above parity.

DiSalle signed the potato order after receiving a second protest against it in as many days from Sens. Dworshak and Welker and Rep. Budge, Idaho Republicans. All of them termed the order "arbitrary, confiscatory and discriminatory" with regard to growers of Idaho potatoes, which normally bring a premium price on the market.

Dworshak said he did not think the delegation accomplished much in its protest. He said he understood the order was being issued in substantially the same form it was originally drafted.

U. N. Prisoner Exchange Plan Draws Red Fire

Objections To New Proposal Presented

MUNSAN, Korea, Saturday, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Allies refused flatly today to budge another inch on supervision of a Korean armistice because they said that to do so would "make arrangements for our own destruction."

In a formal statement early Saturday morning, the United Nations command declared that the supervision issue "is the heart of the armistice and the key to the future."

An Allied spokesman, Navy Lt. Walter J. Ellis, Pittsburgh, Pa., added: "In item three (agenda number for truce supervision) the point we are trying to make clear to the Communists is this:

"We did not come here to make arrangements for our own destruction. It is taking time to get this across to them, but eventually they will have to understand it an accept it."

New sessions at Panmunjom were slated for 11 a. m. today (9 p. m. EST, Friday).

No agreement was reached Friday on either the issue of truce supervision or exchange of prisoners. The Reds presented seven objections to the new Allied six-point proposal on prisoner exchange.

In Paris, a United States delegate expressed concern that a Russian proposal to transfer the armistice talks to the United Nations Security Council might break up the Panmunjom negotiations.

Delegate Benjamin Cohen said the U. S. is unqualifiedly opposed to the move. He said Russia's proposal was hard to understand because the Panmunjom talks appeared to be making slow but sure progress.

The Reds have been saying for weeks that any restrictions on building and repairing airfields in North Korea would constitute interference in their internal affairs. The Allies agreed to permit limited reconstruction for civil air transport only.

BACK ON CEASE-FIRE LINE

SEOUL, Korea, Saturday, Jan. 5 (AP) — Positions along the 145-mile Korean battle front returned Friday to almost the identical line of Nov. 27, when U. N. and Red armistice negotiators agreed to a 30-day provisional cease-fire line.

West of Korangpo the Reds still held one hill wrested from U. N. troops Dec. 28. Above Yanggu the Reds held a ridge which the U. N. voluntarily decided to abandon.

Friday, after a nightlong battle, Allied infantry retook Christmas hill. The Reds first took it Dec. 25—hence the name — then were driven off, but took it again Jan. 3.

Warren Will Bypass Ohio In Delegate Bid

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jan. 4 (AP)—Gov. Earl Warren said today he will bypass Ohio in his pre-convention bid for the Republican presidential nomination, but that he "hasn't closed the door" to entering the Wisconsin primary.

In reply to questioning at a news conference, he said he has given no thought to seeking the Republican delegations in such other states as Oregon, New Hampshire and Minnesota.

As for the home state of Sen. Robert A. Taft, also a presidential hopeful, the California governor said bluntly:

"I will not be in Ohio."

Crete's "Juliet" Forsakes "Romeo" After Argument

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 4 (AP) — Crete's modern Romeo has separated from his sultry-eyed Juliet because they could not agree where they should live, his brother said tonight.

Earlier today, the Athens newspapers said Tassoula Petracogeorgi, 20, had fled to the open arms of her father, George Petracogeorgi, liberal member of parliament, after a round of violent scenes with her husband, fiery Costa Kephaloyannis. The romance more than a year ago of the two members of long feuding Cretan families almost sparked a civil war.

Costa abducted Tassoula and married her. He was imprisoned for illegal possession of weapons, but a happy ending appeared in sight when he was freed in November and the couple was reunited.

Separation of the two was confirmed in a message to the Ministry of the Interior from the commander of police at Herakleion, Crete. Tonight, Emmanuel Kephaloyannis, Costa's brother, in a telegram from Crete, said that it was because of Tassoula's insistence that they should settle in Athens and not at Herakleion that the lovers parted. Costa had tried to persuade his wife that it was necessary to live at Herakleion because of his business interests, the brother said.

Roundup Hits Every Major City In Nation

Operation By 250 T-Men Continuing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Government narcotics agents snapped a giant trap on the drug underworld today and seized more than 500 suspected dope peddlers. Every big city in the nation was involved.

Harry J. Anslinger, narcotics commissioner in the Treasury Department, told reporters the mass mopup operation by 250 undercover agents in his bureau will continue throughout the night. He predicted it will deal a staggering blow to the illict drug traffic.

The roundup of peddlers, Anslinger said, is by far the biggest ever staged.

A few underworld giants were arrested today, he added, but more top racket bosses will be captured when a grand jury investigation, now under way, is completed within three weeks.

Asked where the jury probe is centered, Anslinger told a news conference, "if we even mentioned the name of the city, some of the men who are talking will be killed."

No Violence

The commissioner said the raids were aimed at peddlers who have supplied dope for an alarming increase in teen-age addiction, and at veteran offenders who face stiffened penalties under a new narcotics law which makes prison terms mandatory.

Anslinger said the arrested peddlers "are the most dangerous type of criminals," but that the raids were so thoroughly prepared and secretly staged there was no violence.

Each of the arrests, the commission said, represents an actual purchase of heroin or marihuana by Treasury agents who have worked undercover in the midst of narcotic rings for more than a month.

Anslinger predicted "a very sharp drop" in drug addiction and illict dope traffic. He said he couldn't estimate mathematically how crippling the blow will be.

100 Seized In Texas

The raids started before dawn today in San Antonio, Tex., and spread throughout the nation to more than 18 states. Up to 100 alleged peddlers were seized in Texas alone, 50 in New York, 50 in Philadelphia, and 30 in Washington.

Anslinger said the crackdown is tied to a drive to close down huge European sources for drugs sent to the United States.

He said Italian secret service agents are doing "a magnificent job" in prosecuting drug shippers. Anslinger said Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported U. S. underworld king, is under investigation in Italy in connection with the crackdown.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, under whose supervision the narcotics bureau falls, told Anslinger he and President Truman "want to congratulate you and your agents for a fine day's work."

McGrath Denies He Will Resign

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, under fire in connection with scandals in the government, said today he does not intend to leave the cabinet anytime soon.

"No change in my status is contemplated," McGrath told reporters after a cabinet meeting.

He did not say President Truman had authorized the statement, but indications were that some understanding had been reached.

Both Mr. Truman and McGrath maintained silence yesterday in the face of new reports that the attorney general was planning to resign. And when McGrath entered the White House for the cabinet session, he had brushed aside questions as to his future.

When he emerged an hour and 35 minutes later, McGrath was stopped again by reporters. Obviously in a jovial mood, he said "things are not always what they seem on the surface."

"Do you mean no change in your status is contemplated?" a reporter wanted to know.

McGrath agreed with the deduction, and then rephrased the words of the question into a positive statement.

There has been no suggestion that McGrath has been guilty of any wrongdoing, but some lawmakers have contended he has not been diligent enough in administering his department.

Tawes Proposes Cut In State Income Taxes

BALTIMORE — (AP) — Comptroller J. Millard Tawes proposed yesterday a 15 per cent reduction in Maryland state income tax bills for 1951.

Another top state official said the proposal has Governor McKeldin's endorsement.

James G. Rennie, director of the budget and procurement, told the Legislative Council "the Governor approves it wholeheartedly. I am authorized to say that."

Outlining it to the council, Tawes estimated the reduction would mean a saving of "something over three million dollars" to taxpayers.

As the comptroller explained it, taxpayers would compute their bills by the same percentages now in effect. Then it would subtract 15 per cent from the net tax due on income for 1951. It would affect both earned and unearned income for individuals, but not corporations.

The money to finance such tax relief would come from an estimated surplus of 11 million 845 thousand dollars.

Rennie said more than eight million dollars of the surplus would be included in the budget McKeldin recommends to the legislature when it convenes February 6.

That would mean a general fund budget of some 97 million dollars, compared with current appropriations of 89 million. Rennie also said the total budget, including special funds, would be in the neighborhood of 170 million dollars. The present figure is 163 million.

Rennie told the council the proposed tax reduction was worked out at a conference attended by himself, the Governor, State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles, Attorney General Hall Hammond and Tawes.

If the reduction is adopted by the General Assembly, Rennie estimated it would leave a surplus of less than three thousand dollars at the end of the next fiscal year.

He foresaw the possibility of a future increase in some taxes to maintain appropriations at their present levels "unless revenues keep on increasing."

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Four things add up to a beautiful figure — diet, posture, exercise, and a girdle. The girdle may be a mere wisp but it is sure to delineate the difference between a curve and a bulge. And that's the difference between the beauty and the bumptious.

Easy Slimming

With current fashions, what a girdle does for the waist is most important. The new models fit above the waistline in a way that smooths the diaphragm and helps to pull your waist out of your hips at all times, whether you are sitting, walking or standing.

You can augment the effect with this waist slimming exercise: Lie on the floor with your knees bent, soles on the floor, and hands resting lightly on your thighs. Sliding your hands toward your knees, lift your head and shoulders as high as you can. Roll them back (don't drop back) to the floor again. Work up to the point at which you can easily do this twenty-five times daily — and then be sure that you do! When you see the snug and upping waistlines of the new spring fashions you'll be glad you started this exercise in January.

You'll also want a slimmer thighline to grace those new fashions that have rippling skirts. A four-section foundation with firm side panels will help, but this exercise performed ten times a day will help even more:

Assume the same starting position mentioned above. Drop both knees over to smack the floor, first right and then left, letting the inner surfaces of the thighs slap with each fall. As a dividend, this will reduce your derriere, too.

Posterior View

If you are really worried about your posterior view, chose a girdle with a staunch, down-stretch back panel. Also, start counting your calories and pull your buttocks taut in under your body as an exercise whenever you are standing or walking.

Don't depend on any one element alone — diet, posture, exercise, or a girdle to proportion your figure. It takes all four to achieve the form divine! If that's for you in '52, get busy!

Redinger Draws Four-Year Term For Assault

Raymond Earl Redinger, of Chaneysville, Pa., 32-year-old father of four, was sentenced to four years in the Maryland penitentiary yesterday in Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson on a charge of assault with "intent to carnally know" an 11-year-old Flintstone girl.

The assault took place November 14 at 6 p. m. behind a Flintstone church and Redinger was taken into custody December 4. He was found guilty in court and Judge Henderson delayed sentencing to await a report on the man's background by David M. Steele, parole officer.

Another man, Russell Eugene Day, 28, of Clearville, Pa., arrested on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was to receive a hearing in Juvenile Court. He was involved with the same girl.

State Trooper William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the State Police here, said after a report of the incident was received by State Police a search for the two men was begun.

Later the men, hearing the officer was looking for them, voluntarily came to the State Police barracks in LaVale and surrendered. They are brothers-in-law.

Undergarment Factory Plans New Line Of Products Here

The Cumberland Undergarment Company yesterday announced plans to expand and the launching of a new line of products featuring "nylon and highly styled garments for women."

Maurice Milberg, secretary-treasurer of the firm, explained that although most employes are on furlough, they will be recalled when necessary preparations are completed.

"The furlough period," Milberg stated, "will be devoted to taking inventory, cutting new patterns and taking other steps toward putting the new products into process. Additional sewing equipment has been purchased and is being installed. Actual production will begin in two or three weeks."

"A few employes will be called in every day during the furlough period," Milberg added. "The peak may be reached in about two weeks."

Milberg made it clear the plant is not "shutting down" but is getting ready for the year ahead.

"Prospects for 1952 are very good and we expect to have a busy year."

Approximately 280 employes, 90 per cent of them women, have been on the payroll and Milberg said this number will be increased by about 25. He said experienced women will be hired first.

In addition to going to the better quality nylon products, Milberg said the firm will continue to make rayon goods.

The company began operations here December 3, 1945 and its program has been fulfilled with the exception of economic factors over which it has had no control.

The plant is located at 917 Gay Street in a building which formerly housed the General Textile Mills.

Tawes Proposes Cut In State Income Taxes

BALTIMORE — (AP) — Comptroller J. Millard Tawes proposed yesterday a 15 per cent reduction in Maryland state income tax bills for 1951.

Another top state official said the proposal has Governor McKeldin's endorsement.

James G. Rennie, director of the budget and procurement, told the Legislative Council "the Governor approves it wholeheartedly. I am authorized to say that."

Outlining it to the council, Tawes estimated the reduction would mean a saving of "something over three million dollars" to taxpayers.

As the comptroller explained it, taxpayers would compute their bills by the same percentages now in effect. Then it would subtract 15 per cent from the net tax due on income for 1951. It would affect both earned and unearned income for individuals, but not corporations.

The money to finance such tax relief would come from an estimated surplus of 11 million 845 thousand dollars.

Rennie said more than eight million dollars of the surplus would be included in the budget McKeldin recommends to the legislature when it convenes February 6.

That would mean a general fund budget of some 97 million dollars, compared with current appropriations of 89 million. Rennie also said the total budget, including special funds, would be in the neighborhood of 170 million dollars. The present figure is 163 million.

Rennie told the council the proposed tax reduction was worked out at a conference attended by himself, the Governor, State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles, Attorney General Hall Hammond and Tawes.

If the reduction is adopted by the General Assembly, Rennie estimated it would leave a surplus of less than three thousand dollars at the end of the next fiscal year.

He foresaw the possibility of a future increase in some taxes to maintain appropriations at their present levels "unless revenues keep on increasing."

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Four things add up to a beautiful figure — diet, posture, exercise, and a girdle. The girdle may be a mere wisp but it is sure to delineate the difference between a curve and a bulge. And that's the difference between the beauty and the bumptious.

Easy Slimming

With current fashions, what a girdle does for the waist is most important. The new models fit above the waistline in a way that smooths the diaphragm and helps to pull your waist out of your hips at all times, whether you are sitting, walking or standing.

You can augment the effect with this waist slimming exercise: Lie on the floor with your knees bent, soles on the floor, and hands resting lightly on your thighs. Sliding your hands toward your knees, lift your head and shoulders as high as you can. Roll them back (don't drop back) to the floor again. Work up to the point at which you can easily do this twenty-five times daily — and then be sure that you do! When you see the snug and upping waistlines of the new spring fashions you'll be glad you started this exercise in January.

You'll also want a slimmer thighline to grace those new fashions that have rippling skirts. A four-section foundation with firm side panels will help, but this exercise performed ten times a day will help even more:

Assume the same starting position mentioned above. Drop both knees over to smack the floor, first right and then left, letting the inner surfaces of the thighs slap with each fall. As a dividend, this will reduce your derriere, too.

Posterior View

If you are really worried about your posterior view, chose a girdle with a staunch, down-stretch back panel. Also, start counting your calories and pull your buttocks taut in under your body as an exercise whenever you are standing or walking.

Don't depend on any one element alone — diet, posture, exercise, or a girdle to proportion your figure. It takes all four to achieve the form divine! If that's for you in '52, get busy!

Wreck Driver Pleads Guilty

The young driver of the auto in which an Allegany High School girl received fatal injuries pleaded guilty to a charge of driving too fast for highway conditions yesterday in Bedford, Pa.

Justice of the Peace Frank Templeton said Earl Franklin Eaton, Jr., Route 1, this city, was fined $10.

Eaton was the driver of the car which skidded on icy Route 220 Tuesday afternoon in front of Bedford Springs Hotel, struck a tree and fatally injured Huldah Miller, 15, of LaVale.

Eaton was released from Bedford County Memorial Hospital Friday where he has been a patient since Tuesday. Charles Everline, of LaVale, William Northcraft, 18, LaVale Boulevard, and Lois Baker, 17, Braddock Street, LaVale, were also injured.

A service for Miss Miller was conducted yesterday in the Hafer Funeral Home by Rev. W. W. Patterson, pastor of LaVale Methodist Church. Interment was in Hillcrest Burial Park.

Redinger Draws Four-Year Term For Assault

Raymond Earl Redinger, of Chaneysville, Pa., 32-year-old father of four, was sentenced to four years in the Maryland penitentiary yesterday in Circuit Court by Associate Judge George Henderson on a charge of assault with "intent to carnally know" an 11-year-old Flintstone girl.

The assault took place November 14 at 6 p. m. behind a Flintstone church and Redinger was taken into custody December 4. He was found guilty in court and Judge Henderson delayed sentencing to await a report on the man's background by David M. Steele, parole officer.

Another man, Russell Eugene Day, 28, of Clearville, Pa., arrested on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was to receive a hearing in Juvenile Court. He was involved with the same girl.

State Trooper William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the State Police here, said after a report of the incident was received by State Police a search for the two men was begun.

Later the men, hearing the officer was looking for them, voluntarily came to the State Police barracks in LaVale and surrendered. They are brothers-in-law.

Undergarment Factory Plans New Line Of Products Here

The Cumberland Undergarment Company yesterday announced plans to expand and the launching of a new line of products featuring "nylon and highly styled garments for women."

Maurice Milberg, secretary-treasurer of the firm, explained that although most employes are on furlough, they will be recalled when necessary preparations are completed.

"The furlough period," Milberg stated, "will be devoted to taking inventory, cutting new patterns and taking other steps toward putting the new products into process. Additional sewing equipment has been purchased and is being installed. Actual production will begin in two or three weeks."

"A few employes will be called in every day during the furlough period," Milberg added. "The peak may be reached in about two weeks."

Milberg made it clear the plant is not "shutting down" but is getting ready for the year ahead.

"Prospects for 1952 are very good and we expect to have a busy year."

Approximately 280 employes, 90 per cent of them women, have been on the payroll and Milberg said this number will be increased by about 25. He said experienced women will be hired first.

In addition to going to the better quality nylon products, Milberg said the firm will continue to make rayon goods.

The company began operations here December 3, 1945 and its program has been fulfilled with the exception of economic factors over which it has had no control.

The plant is located at 917 Gay Street in a building which formerly housed the General Textile Mills.

N-S Players Tie Score In SW Game

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Taylor and Henry Groudan with Harry Oss, Keyser, tied for North and South while Mr. and Mrs. George Ward were East and West winners in the Special Winners game of the Western Maryland Bridge Association.

The winner's Section A of the Thursday night play proved one of the most hotly contested matches played in Cumberland the past years, Albert Heacox, president, reports. There was only one half match point difference between first and third place, North and South, and all 38 players in Section A were in the running up to the last card.

After playing 27 boards, the North and South place winners resulted in the tie between Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and Mr. Goudan and Mr. Oss. Other North and South winners were S. Russ Minter, William A. Douglas, third; Thomas Hannon, Theodore Grey, fourth; Mrs. Donald Grove, Hugo Keller, fifth. East and West winners were Mr. and Mrs. Ward, first; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hott, Keyser, second; Mrs. Russell Bortz, John R. Wilkinson, third; Mrs. Robert Gerson, Mrs. Harold Hirsh, fourth; Ben Franklin, George Hetzel, fifth.

Winning pairs in both positions will receive two full Master Points.

In Section B, 42 players in an 11 table Mitchell game, played 27 boards and the winning North South teams were Miss Rose Jackson, Mrs. Fred Puderbaugh, first; Mrs. Helen Caldwell, Frostburg, Mrs. Edwin Jones, second; Mrs. Clyde Rowe, Westernport; Mrs. A. T. Hodges, Keyser. East and West teams were Mrs. Gerard Everstine, Miss Louise Zihlman, first; Mrs. Jacob Shearer, Blake Oss, Keyser, second; Miss Ruth Hirsh, Miss Isabel Fenster, third.

The winning pairs in both positions qualified for the next Winners Game, sometime in February or March.

This weekend members of the association are playing in out of town tournaments. Mrs. Fuller B. Whitworth and Mrs. Gladys Grove are in Washington, playing in the 15th annual Northern Virginia championship at Hotel Willard. About 20 members are going to participate in the one day tournament at the Uniontown Country Club.

European Unification

As the New Year opens, Western Europe appears on the verge of taking two long strides toward unification. The Schuman Plan, already ratified by France and about to be considered by the West German parliament, provides machinery to bring the basic coal and steel industries of six nations under supranational control. Meanwhile, a plan is under negotiation to merge the continental forces of the same nations in a single European army. Successful operation of those plans, one economic and one military and both involving important modifications of national sovereignty, would go far to lay the foundation for political union.

Common economic troubles and common external threats forced the nations of Western Europe after the war to cooperate more and more closely. First the Marshall Plan and then the North Atlantic Pact compelled consideration of community problems on a community-wide basis. But the conviction grew that the joint action thus achieved was not enough, that it must be supplemented by far-reaching measures for permanent unification if Western Europe was to become independent of foreign aid and gain the economic and military strength of which it was capable.

Recently there have been signs of rising resistance in the U. S. Congress to large additional foreign aid appropriations without concrete evidence that the recipients are doing their utmost to reduce the need for future American assistance. Members are likely to regard action on the Schuman and army plans as an immediate test of Europe's intentions. With the pressure now building up, from General Eisenhower's headquarters as well as from Congress, it looks as if the test would be met.

Formation at one stroke of a United States of Europe would be a task of the greatest complexity for ancient sovereign nations with different languages, different traditions, and different economic characteristics. Rather than tackle that task and fail, the architects of the Schuman and army plans have preferred the functional approach to unification. Their plans aim at effective union in limited spheres where the interests and needs are well defined, but they hold out hope that successful experience there will make for solid if slow progress toward political union.

The most significant aspect of the Schuman Plan is that it comes to grips with the question of national sovereignty. Administration and supervision of the plan is to be entrusted to what is in effect a miniature international government, comprising executive, legislative, and judicial branches, to which the participating countries will delegate a portion of their sovereignty. Similar supranational authorities are envisioned for the proposad European army, although the powers delegated in that case may be limited. If this process is gradually extended to other fields, the day may come when it will be only a short step to full union.

Advocates of European unification gained a political forum in 1949, when the Council of Europe was established at Strasbourg. Its Consultative Assembly consists of representatives from 15 countries, but they have power only to make recommendations to a Committee of Foreign Ministers, which may or may not pass them on to the governments of member states. Although the Assembly can do no more than debate and recommend, it constitutes a valuable agency for the development and expression of European opinion. And it is even now striving to obtain real powers and assume a central and effective role in European unification.

Great Britain is represented in the Council of Europe, but British spokesmen have made it plain that the United Kingdom will not join any European federation. Prime Minister Churchill has been an ardent advocate of European union, but the Conservative government, like the Labor government before it, holds that Britain's Commonwealth ties make impossible any integral link with continental nations. Close association with, but not membership in, such groups as the Schuman and European army organizations is apparently as far as Britain will go.

Limit Doesn't Limit

Those who think the question of raising the federal debt limit is academic take a fatalistic attitude. There is some agitation for taking the debt limit off entirely when the question confronts Congress this year.

This so-called limit, granted, doesn't limit. Back in the early depression years, 1929-1933, the limit was $25,000,000,000. But deficit spending began and Congress raised the figure to $30,000,000,000 in 1935, to $45,000,000,000 in 1939, and to $65,000,000,000 in 1941. Then came Pearl Harbor and a series of new limits year after year.

The details are interesting in a melancholy sort of way. In 1942 the limit went to $125,000,000,000. In 1943 it was $210,000,000,000. Then, in 1945, it reached $300,000,000,000, which was the high mark. The next year Congress cut it to $275,000,000,000, the present figure.

This recital demonstrates that no debt limit keeps Congress from spending money. If Congress wants to spend, it just throws the limit overboard. So what good is a statute solemnly declaring that the public debt shall not be greater than a certain sum?

It puts a psychological check-rein, if nothing else, on the proclivity to spend. As the time approaches when the limit must be raised if spending is to go on, the sad fact of deficit-financing gets an emphasis it ought to have.

Taking Vs. Making

The reason the Soviet Union keeps on claiming the inventions of other nations is because it has so few of its own. That at least is the conclusion of Patent Research Reports, which points out that neither Russia nor any puppet state offers encouragement to the inventor.

If an inventor comes up with a discovery, it is immediately seized by the state and turned to its own purposes. In countries such as Romania, which give a measure of patent protection, it is provided that when an inventor is not satisfied with the deal proposed by the government the invention may be "expropriated according to the law in force."

There is no means of determining whether this is the real explanation of reports from Moscow every now and then that some discovery always attributed previously to the national of another country, is suddenly found to have been made by a Russian. But it sounds plausible.

Russia, which has no patent agreements with other countries that might, at least on paper, cramp its style, constantly steals U. S. patents. There have been frequent reports that the Russian embassy in Washington buys copies of U. S. patents for a few cents from the Patent Office in lots of hundreds.

Chilblains From Damp Houses

Chilblains (pernio) is a vanishing disorder, especially in the United States and Canada. The condition still is common in England, where the homes are damper than in America and where stoves and fireplaces rather than radiators are the rule.

Many years ago American women were bothered by this disorder. Cold had an adverse effect on the skin of exposed areas. Poor circulation was blamed and rightly so but the real cause never became apparent to the physician of that day. A disturbance in the capillaries existed, on not so much by the cold out of doors as by conditions indoors. There was no central heating in those days and it was not unusual for the womenfolk to expose hands, feet, arms, and legs to the fireplace or red hot stove in kitchen or living room. This led to capillary damage. The cold and damp regions elsewhere in the home rarely helped and all too often made matters worse. It is no wonder that skin exposed to such conditions failed to stand up under the severe wintry blasts.

The lower legs, especially the shins and calves, as well as the arms, hands, and ears, suffer most. Initially the exposed parts become red and mottled. Later, the skin appears to thicken and becomes raised and painful and the color darkens to a dusky red or bluish hue. The lesions may clear in a few weeks but relapses are common in the winter months. Repeated exposures or lack of protection aggravates the condition. The elevated areas soften and now and then break down into painful ulcers. Discomfort is severe and the parts burn not only during periods of exposure but on returning to a warm environment. In fact, many have more distress during the warming period and find it most uncomfortable to take a hot bath or climb into a warm bed. When spring rolls around the disorder clears gradually and by summer the legs are normal again. The next year the cycle is repeated.

Most victims are young girls and two types seem to be favored: The fat, phlegmatic gal with red complexion and coarse dry skin and the thin, highstrung, nervous young lady with cold, clammy skin. Both may have had a thyroid deficiency and the latter group could have been undernourished. The heating of our modern homes, resulting in less dampness, would have done more than anything else to prevent the disturbance. Some thanks also should be given to our improved nutritional status and our tendency to wear less binding clothing, including shoes. The growing tendency of our young girls to exercise has improved the tone of the vascular system.

Treatment never proved too satisfactory. Heat and massage were used to stimulate circulation. "Cold training" also had its day; this regimen was more of a conditioning treatment in which involved areas were exposed a little more each day to raise the tolerance of the tissues to cold. Nowadays the most satisfactory forms of therapy are aimed at the circulation. Drugs that dilate the blood vessels are the most popular and consist of histamine ointments, nicotinic acid, and thyroid extract. Calcium also is used with some success and X-ray treatments have been recommended.

CONVULSIONS AND INFECTION

Mrs. J. writes: Did you ever hear of convulsions accompanying whooping cough?

REPLY

Yes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on convulsions.

SUN THROUGH WINDOW

C. T. writes: Are there any beneficial effects from the sun shining through a windowpane?

REPLY

The ultraviolet rays are said to be filtered by glass, which leaves only the infra-red, or heat rays.

THEY VARY

J. C. writes: Are virus infections contagious?

REPLY

Some are and some are not. The common cold, influenza, and chickenpox are extremely so. Yellow fever, contracted through the bite of an infected mosquito, is not contagious in this respect.

AFTER AMPUTATION

M. C. writes: Are you supposed to have a funny feeling in the stump of your leg after it has been cut off below the knee? This happened three months ago?

REPLY

Not every amputee develops this "funny feeling" after the operatoin. Sensations such as these, referred to as paresthesia or phantom limb, have their origin in the site where the nerves have been cut. In time the manifestations disappear.

DISCOLORED SITE

Mrs. F. writes: I had a varicose ulcer and after it healed the skin in that area turned brown. What caused that?

REPLY

This is caused by blood pigment that has been deposited beneath the skin. The darkened area may fade but there is a good chance that it never will disappear completely.

Churchill And Truman Last Met Officially At Potsdam; Truman Has Chance To Sell Churchill On European Unity; "Winnie" Still Thinks Of Empire

WASHINGTON — The last time Winston Churchill met in an official conference with Harry Truman, he was on the ebb-tide of a great and glorious career as war prime minister; Truman had just taken over the complex burdens of Franklin Roosevelt.

That was at Potsdam. The other figure at Potsdam was Stalin, and Churchill has never forgotten how Truman—new, nervous, peppery—began that session.

He began it by bawling out Stalin for being late. The train through Poland was one day late arriving, and Truman, without directly referring to this, delivered a 20-minute lecture to the Russian dictator that sessions would begin on time, would be conducted with regularity, with a definite agenda, and so on.

During the lecture, Churchill and Jimmy Byrnes, then secretary of State, exchanged glances. They wished they could find some way to soft-pedal the new President. But they couuldn't tug at the Truman coat-tails. And after it was all over and Secretary Byrnes was about to give Truman a friendly suggestion that the time to bawl out Stalin was when the conference was deadlocked, not when it started, General Vaughan piped up to tell Truman how wonderful the bawling out had been.

A few days later, Winston Churchill went down to overwhelming defeat in the British elections, packed up and departed from Potsdam, leaving Harry Truman to pilot Anglo-American relations over the uncharted seas of the stormy post-war world.

Ebb-tide of Empire

Truman and Churchill met again at Fulton, Mo., in 1946, but Churchill was only an ordinary citizen then and there were no problems to discuss.

Today Churchill comes back at the ebb-tide of his life, at the ebb-tide of the British Empire. He will try to recover for the empire, and he will try to recover the policies dropped when he was defeated at Potsdam.

He will not find things quite the same as during his previous conference with Mr. Truman, however, nor on his previous visits to the White House. Mr. Truman is older, more experienced, but just as peppery, just as inclined to bawl people out. In fact, some of his advisers have feared he might bawl out Churchill himself for proposing another meeting of the Big Three—Stalin, Truman and Churchill.

If Mr. Truman bawled out Mr. Churchill regarding the unity of Europe, it might set a new milestone for world peace. For most of Europe will be watching the Churchill-Truman conference to see whether the United States follows Churchill's lead for the disunity of Europe, or whether Churchill follows our lead for the unification of Europe.

So if Mr. Truman took Winston to task on this vital policy, he would get cheers, not only from most of the prime ministers but from the ordinary folks of Europe.

Truman is more likely, however, to deliver a lecture not on this major issue, but on the much less important matter of Churchill's idea of a Big-Three meeting. For HST has repeatedly stated that it was up to Stalin to come to see him, not vice versa. And Mr. Truman was a bit irked when the new prime minister would not listen to the advice of our American embassy in London to omit from a recent speech all reference to a Big Three meeting.

Another thing Churchill will find different is the atmosphere around the White House. During war days, the White House became a sort of second home to Winston. He and his personal staff occupied a suite of rooms in the White House and the PM used to thump down the corridor to the bedroom of the President in his slippers, a gold kimono flapping round his half-naked torso at all hours of the night, in order to push British policy across on the sometimes reluctant Roosevelt.

3 A. M. Conferences

These midnight conferences became so routine that American admirals and generals worried about them. Churchill has the habit of not getting up until 10 or 11, then going to bed after lunch and sleeping most of the afternoon. Much of his most important business, therefore, is carried on between the end of dinner at 10 p. m. and bedtime at 3 a. m.

These late hours, American military claimed, wore Roosevelt out. Furthermore they suspected that the British prime minister chose them to discuss important decisions, because a weary FDR was more likely to compromise; second, because the military was not around during these nocturnal conferences to object to Churchillian decisions.

Be that as it may, Harry Truman is not going in for these late parleys. He has already sent word to the British embassy that his bedtime is around 10 p. m. and he will not be able to confer with Churchill later than 9 p. m.

Pathetic Heroic Picture

In a way Winston Churchill presents a pathetic picture on his present mission—the last great defender of an empire that is no more.

When he was wartime leader of Britain, Winston told Roosevelt he had not been made prime minister to "liquidate the British Empire." Yet he now faces an empire shorn of India, grasping desperately to retain Suez, with iron deposits exhausted and coal getting lower, thinner and more expensive to mine.

Yet Churchill still thinks in terms of empire in those lush days when he was a buccaneering war correspondent in the Sudan and the Punjab—the days when the world shook whenever the British lion roared.

Intertwined with Churchill's past is one great policy which he has always followed — friendship with the United States. Sometimes that friendship has been a slightly domineering partnership wherein John Bull piped the tune and Uncle Sam paid the bill. Nevertheless Churchill has fundamentally and continuously felt that British and American friendship was the best guarantee of the peace of the world—though the empire, of course, always came first.

If now, in his meeting with Truman, he can build on top of that friendship foundation a policy of European unity, regardless of the old empire, then the peace for which he and the world have groped finally may be fulfilled.

Ed. Note—Another Drew Pearson column on the vital problems facing Church and Truman will follow on Monday.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Return Of Churchill

Among Britishers, none appeals to the American imagination as does Winston Churchill. As British as John Bull, he has an instinct for American atmosphere and personality.

He comes to repair the damage done to Anglo-American relations by the British Socialists, the pro-British excesses of Dean Acheson and those Americans who are captives of British culture. In a word, he must recognize, as few of his countrymen, do, that Americans who are more British than American are as offensive to most Americans as those who are more pro-Russian than they are pro-American. The American people are turning from a synthetic globalism, which has brought nothing but misery and death, to patriotism, which built our country.

Churchill is neither a Socialist nor a globalist. He is a British imperialist who did not take office to preside over the dissolution of the British Empire. He represents in his person not only a country, but a civilization.

Yet, it is impossible for him not to recognize three major historic factors which may, in the broadest sense, be producing the forces that will reduce Great Britain to a secondary role. These are:

1. The rise of new civilizations, out of war and revolution, which contest Anglo-Saxon supremacy and superiority not only from the economic and political standpoint but also on a racial basis;

2. The reduction of the authority in world affairs of the processing nations, with the attendant wealth that comes from banking, shipping and insurance. The automatic machine reduces the advantages of human skills and even the so-called "know-how" of experience. This new industrial revolution is already having far-reaching effects upon the great colonial powers;

3. The rise of new empires—the Soviet empire; the Moslem cultural empire; the Latins, perhaps under Spanish or Argentinian leadership; the emergence of Soviet China as a military power; the expansion of the Soviet periphery toward the Indian countries — these historic factors can only be ignored by a political ostrich—a description that can never fit Winston Churchill. Among these new empires, military operations are not conventional, involving the Anglo-American countries in major difficulties.

The British, as the Americans, are being forced to recognize that inaccurately described racial problems move upon the current canvas with greater vigor than either economic or political problems.

A Pakistani will not, for instance, accept the Anglo-Saxon concept of "white superiority," which has not foundation in science or history.

This is tough business and difficult to discuss in the United States where the Negro problem arouses deep emotions. Yet, we are piling up casualties in Korea over precisely this problem. I can say from my own long experience in Asia that if we spent billions upon billions on that continent to make ourselves popular and to engage the good-will of those peoples, we shall fail as long as those peoples believe that we believe that we are superior because of race.

True, Soviet Russia is doing a masterly job stimulating racial antagonism. They will profit greatly out of the stupidities of the Florida bombings. But long before Soviet Russian propaganda appeared on the scene, what in Asia is called "anti-colonialism," which is racial, not nationalistic, was a force. I first encountered it in China as early as 1918 and in Japan in 1920. The Japanese Black Dragon Society, headed by Mitsuru Toyama, was already a force.

Churchill undoubtedly comes here for money, but he is no arrogant beggar like his Socialist predecessors whom our State Department supported. He has pride of country. Yet, he must face frankly the cold fact that most Americans find distasteful the British political affinity for Chinese Communists who massacre Americans, particularly prisoners of war.

He would be well advised to reject the counsel of the emotionally captive pro-Britishers who feel that England can do no wrong even if his name is Attlee or Bevan.

British policy in Asia can no longer dominate American policy in Asia, and even Dean Acheson accepts a medal from the Jewish War Veterans because there are no Arab voters in critical states in an election year. Churchill will grasp the essence of that because he understands votes. He can discover the pressure of public opinion here on such questions as China, Korea, Israel, Iran and Egypt. We are not going along with colonialism.

Winston Churchill is preferable, from an American standpoint, to British socialism, headed by the pro-Russian Aneurin Bevan. But he needs to recognize that, in 1952, the American people will no longer support.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—There is something incongruous about the scramble in the Republican party for a chance to win the nomination for the Presidency when a close look at what confusing and oppressive problems surround the present incumbent of the White House might logically cause everyone else to shun the job.

For the truth is the Presidency has become an almost impossible task for one man. Even with the best intentions in the world, Mr. Truman has sought to meet his responsibilities by delegating power and authority to individual cabinet officers or to heads of agencies. That formula will not work any longer.

For government by delegation to a single cabinet officer is still one-man government. No one man is able nowadays to make all the decisions entrusted to him. The problem, for example, of making international policies today is in reality something for conference and committee or for action by a chosen group.

One-Man Decisions Incredible

It is incredible that decisions are made today in Washington in the field of foreign policy by one man—the Secretary of State or by one assistant in a specialized field.

It is incredible that the Secretary of State makes the decisions that restrict the action of the Department of Defense.

It is incredible that there is no national council which actually takes the responsibility for the calculated risks in foreign policy.

The other day a member of the cabinet of the late President Roosevelt asked the writer if the decision to go into Korea was a wise one.

The answers which this correspondent made are given here merely to illustrate the lack of policy in that all-important situation which has since had consequences that have affected America in the economic, political and foreign fields. Here is not one but a series of answers to the question: "Should we have gone into Korea?"

1. If intervention in Korea was justified, then the top command in the United States was asleep at the switch. We had no expeditionary force in Japan beforehand but merely an occupation army unequipped for any such service as Korea required.

2. If we intended to protect our frontiers in 1950, then the top command should have insisted ahead of time on putting enough naval, air and ground forces in Okinawa or Japan to take care of the emergencies that might come in the Far East in the cold war.

3. If, in intervening in Korea, it was not intended to conduct the operation with maximum force, as General MacArthur or any other purely military man would have recommended, then it was a mistake ever to have gone into Korea.

4. If the decision to intervene in Korea was a sound one, then the UN members should have been obliged to supply proportionate forces and, if these were not forthcoming, the American military commander should have been given a free hand to secure his objectives by maximum force.

5. If the United States feared that maximum force in Korea meant a third world war and if fear of a third world war is a justified reason for hesitation, the decision to take no risks should have been made before committing any troops to Korea.

6. The decision to intervene was justified on the assumption that the UN would furnish adequate support. It was worth while making that decision if only to discover that the UN is incapable of furnishing collective security and that regional alliances alone can afford security.

Group Decision Needed

Now, irrespective of whether the foregoing answers will be accepted as persuasive, there can be no doubt that decisions were involved before and after the Korean intervention which should have been appraised not by the President and his Secretary of State alone but by a group of the ablest men in the military, the diplomatic and the legislative departments of the government. All these calculated risks should have been weighed on a long-range basis before Korea.

The tragedy is that no such top council has been functioning in our government. The National Security Council created by Congress is a paper organization which has not been doing the job intended for it by Congress. The so-called top command is a myth. The lack of collaboration between all factors in government who could formulate a long-range policy is one of the weaknesses in our present system.

Whether a new President of the United States would change this is difficult to conjecture, but the present-day conception of the Presidency is outmoded. The British cabinet system is far better in one respect at least—it is a collaboration of the best minds in the majority party, whereas in America the cabinet is just a group of executive administrators who know only their own departmental problems. Eighty billions for armament without a planned foreign policy is like pulling big guns up to the firing lines without a range finder or without aerial reconnaissance.

An Epoch Continues

By MARK SULLIVAN

Out of Moscow on January 2 came a dispatch which bears not at all on the present, but bears very much on how the present came to be what it is. The dispatch was an obituary. Maxim Litvinov had been long in retirement, but 19 years ago he had been one of two principal figures in an event which for America was the beginning of an epoch—an epoch of which the end is not in sight and the continuation of which determines the most important of our national activities.

In 1933 communism as an ideology and form of government had been in existence for 16 years, beginning with the Russian revolution of 1917. Throughout the period recognition of the Communist government of Russia had been continuously withheld by four Presidents—Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. We had had no official relations with that government. Franklin Roosevelt, however, in the first year of his administration, gave recognition, and in the negotiations preceding, the Russian representative was Litvinov. He, to assure Roosevelt and America, wrote:

"It will be the fixed policy of the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to respect scrupulously the indisputable rights of the United States to order its own life within its own jurisdiction within its own way, and to refrain from any interference in any manner in the internal affairs of the United States." To this, Roosevelt replied that he was glad to have this expressed assurance of the "fixed policy" of Russia.

Recognition by our government was an immense advantage to the Russian Communists. Before that, access by them to the United States had been largely furtive, they had been as a rule smugglers of propaganda, secret foreign agent of subversion. Now however they had sanction. They could have an embassy in Washington, and consulates in cities which could be centers for spreading communism. Moreover, recognition by our government conferred respectability, it lulled popular suspicion of communism, encouraged persons who were partisans of it or felt one degree or another of toleronce for it.

Recognition of Communist Russia in 1933 was followed by other steps even more helpful. In 1941, we took a step that was much more than diplomatic recognition, that was indeed a direct and concrete help to the military strength of Russia. Preceding 1941, Russia and Germany, dictator Stalin and dictator Hitler, had been for some two years in cooperation. They had divided Poland between them and were engaged in what amounted to a division of Europe between them. Suddenly, in June, 1941, Hitler turned upon Stalin, sent his troops into Russia.

In the conflict thus arising we took sides with Russia, gave materials for war and other forms of help. Among our people and among spokesmen of opinion there was bitter opposition to our action, bitter denunciation of Russia and of communism. Later, however, after we were involved in world war by the Japanese attack upon us at Pearl Harbor, informal help to Russia became formel alliance with her. In this condition, criticism of Russian communism came into disfavor, almost it was regarded as lack of patriotism.

FDR's Decisions Helped

This restraint of public opinion, companied by decisions by President Roosevelt during the war, which gave military and territorial advance to Russian communism in Europe and in Asia, which contributed to the power which is now a threat to us and obliges us to make the tremendous defense effort we are now engaged in. The restraint upon public opinion continued throughout organization of the United Nations in 1945 and for some two years after. It was not until about 1947 that we recognized what confronted us.

It is frequently said that the Presidential election this year will be a verdict of the country on the conduct of our relations with Communist Russia. The administration, quite naturally, would prefer that the verdict be on what hopes it has for the future about relations with Communist Russia. It obviously finds hope in the strengthening of the armed forces of the United States ond the other free nations that has taken place since Korea. But there is likelihood that many voters will prefer to decide upon the past record.

European Unification

As the New Year opens, Western Europe appears on the verge of taking two long strides toward unification. The Schuman Plan, already ratified by France and about to be considered by the West German parliament, provides machinery to bring the basic coal and steel industries of six nations under supranational control. Meanwhile, a plan is under negotiation to merge the continental forces of the same nations in a single European army. Successful operation of those plans, one economic and one military and both involving important modifications of national sovereignty, would go far to lay the foundation for political union.

Common economic troubles and common external threats forced the nations of Western Europe after the war to cooperate more and more closely. First the Marshall Plan and then the North Atlantic Pact compelled consideration of community problems on a community-wide basis. But the conviction grew that the joint action thus achieved was not enough, that it must be supplemented by far-reaching measures for permanent unification if Western Europe was to become independent of foreign aid and gain the economic and military strength of which it was capable.

Recently there have been signs of rising resistance in the U. S. Congress to large additional foreign aid appropriations without concrete evidence that the recipients are doing their utmost to reduce the need for future American assistance. Members are likely to regard action on the Schuman and army plans as an immediate test of Europe's intentions. With the pressure now building up, from General Eisenhower's headquarters as well as from Congress, it looks as if the test would be met.

Formation at one stroke of a United States of Europe would be a task of the greatest complexity for ancient sovereign nations with different languages, different traditions, and different economic characteristics. Rather than tackle that task and fail, the architects of the Schuman and army plans have preferred the functional approach to unification. Their plans aim at effective union in limited spheres where the interests and needs are well defined, but they hold out hope that successful experience there will make for solid if slow progress toward political union.

The most significant aspect of the Schuman Plan is that it comes to grips with the question of national sovereignty. Administration and supervision of the plan is to be entrusted to what is in effect a miniature international government, comprising executive, legislative, and judicial branches, to which the participating countries will delegate a portion of their sovereignty. Similar supranational authorities are envisioned for the proposad European army, although the powers delegated in that case may be limited. If this process is gradually extended to other fields, the day may come when it will be only a short step to full union.

Advocates of European unification gained a political forum in 1949, when the Council of Europe was established at Strasbourg. Its Consultative Assembly consists of representatives from 15 countries, but they have power only to make recommendations to a Committee of Foreign Ministers, which may or may not pass them on to the governments of member states. Although the Assembly can do no more than debate and recommend, it constitutes a valuable agency for the development and expression of European opinion. And it is even now striving to obtain real powers and assume a central and effective role in European unification.

Great Britain is represented in the Council of Europe, but British spokesmen have made it plain that the United Kingdom will not join any European federation. Prime Minister Churchill has been an ardent advocate of European union, but the Conservative government, like the Labor government before it, holds that Britain's Commonwealth ties make impossible any integral link with continental nations. Close association with, but not membership in, such groups as the Schuman and European army organizations is apparently as far as Britain will go.

Limit Doesn't Limit

Those who think the question of raising the federal debt limit is academic take a fatalistic attitude. There is some agitation for taking the debt limit off entirely when the question confronts Congress this year.

This so-called limit, granted, doesn't limit. Back in the early depression years, 1929-1933, the limit was $25,000,000,000. But deficit spending began and Congress raised the figure to $30,000,000,000 in 1935, to $45,000,000,000 in 1939, and to $65,000,000,000 in 1941. Then came Pearl Harbor and a series of new limits year after year.

The details are interesting in a melancholy sort of way. In 1942 the limit went to $125,000,000,000. In 1943 it was $210,000,000,000. Then, in 1945, it reached $300,000,000,000, which was the high mark. The next year Congress cut it to $275,000,000,000, the present figure.

This recital demonstrates that no debt limit keeps Congress from spending money. If Congress wants to spend, it just throws the limit overboard. So what good is a statute solemnly declaring that the public debt shall not be greater than a certain sum?

It puts a psychological check-rein, if nothing else, on the proclivity to spend. As the time approaches when the limit must be raised if spending is to go on, the sad fact of deficit-financing gets an emphasis it ought to have.

Taking Vs. Making

The reason the Soviet Union keeps on claiming the inventions of other nations is because it has so few of its own. That at least is the conclusion of Patent Research Reports, which points out that neither Russia nor any puppet state offers encouragement to the inventor.

If an inventor comes up with a discovery, it is immediately seized by the state and turned to its own purposes. In countries such as Romania, which give a measure of patent protection, it is provided that when an inventor is not satisfied with the deal proposed by the government the invention may be "expropriated according to the law in force."

There is no means of determining whether this is the real explanation of reports from Moscow every now and then that some discovery always attributed previously to the national of another country, is suddenly found to have been made by a Russian. But it sounds plausible.

Russia, which has no patent agreements with other countries that might, at least on paper, cramp its style, constantly steals U. S. patents. There have been frequent reports that the Russian embassy in Washington buys copies of U. S. patents for a few cents from the Patent Office in lots of hundreds.

Chilblains From Damp Houses

Chilblains (pernio) is a vanishing disorder, especially in the United States and Canada. The condition still is common in England, where the homes are damper than in America and where stoves and fireplaces rather than radiators are the rule.

Many years ago American women were bothered by this disorder. Cold had an adverse effect on the skin of exposed areas. Poor circulation was blamed and rightly so but the real cause never became apparent to the physician of that day. A disturbance in the capillaries existed, on not so much by the cold out of doors as by conditions indoors. There was no central heating in those days and it was not unusual for the womenfolk to expose hands, feet, arms, and legs to the fireplace or red hot stove in kitchen or living room. This led to capillary damage. The cold and damp regions elsewhere in the home rarely helped and all too often made matters worse. It is no wonder that skin exposed to such conditions failed to stand up under the severe wintry blasts.

The lower legs, especially the shins and calves, as well as the arms, hands, and ears, suffer most. Initially the exposed parts become red and mottled. Later, the skin appears to thicken and becomes raised and painful and the color darkens to a dusky red or bluish hue. The lesions may clear in a few weeks but relapses are common in the winter months. Repeated exposures or lack of protection aggravates the condition. The elevated areas soften and now and then break down into painful ulcers. Discomfort is severe and the parts burn not only during periods of exposure but on returning to a warm environment. In fact, many have more distress during the warming period and find it most uncomfortable to take a hot bath or climb into a warm bed. When spring rolls around the disorder clears gradually and by summer the legs are normal again. The next year the cycle is repeated.

Most victims are young girls and two types seem to be favored: The fat, phlegmatic gal with red complexion and coarse dry skin and the thin, highstrung, nervous young lady with cold, clammy skin. Both may have had a thyroid deficiency and the latter group could have been undernourished. The heating of our modern homes, resulting in less dampness, would have done more than anything else to prevent the disturbance. Some thanks also should be given to our improved nutritional status and our tendency to wear less binding clothing, including shoes. The growing tendency of our young girls to exercise has improved the tone of the vascular system.

Treatment never proved too satisfactory. Heat and massage were used to stimulate circulation. "Cold training" also had its day; this regimen was more of a conditioning treatment in which involved areas were exposed a little more each day to raise the tolerance of the tissues to cold. Nowadays the most satisfactory forms of therapy are aimed at the circulation. Drugs that dilate the blood vessels are the most popular and consist of histamine ointments, nicotinic acid, and thyroid extract. Calcium also is used with some success and X-ray treatments have been recommended.

CONVULSIONS AND INFECTION

Mrs. J. writes: Did you ever hear of convulsions accompanying whooping cough?

REPLY

Yes. Send a stamped, self-addresed envelope for leaflet on convulsions.

SUN THROUGH WINDOW

C. T. writes: Are there any beneficial effects from the sun shining through a windowpane?

REPLY

The ultraviolet rays are said to be filtered by glass, which leaves only the infra-red, or heat rays.

THEY VARY

J. C. writes: Are virus infections contagious?

REPLY

Some are and some are not. The common cold, influenza, and chickenpox are extremely so. Yellow fever, contracted through the bite of an infected mosquito, is not contagious in this respect.

AFTER AMPUTATION

M. C. writes: Are you supposed to have a funny feeling in the stump of your leg after it has been cut off below the knee? This happened three months ago?

REPLY

Not every amputee develops this "funny feeling" after the operatoin. Sensations such as these, referred to as paresthesia or phantom limb, have their origin in the site where the nerves have been cut. In time the manifestations disappear.

DISCOLORED SITE

Mrs. F. writes: I had a varicose ulcer and after it healed the skin in that area turned brown. What caused that?

REPLY

This is caused by blood pigment that has been deposited beneath the skin. The darkened area may fade but there is a good chance that it never will disappear completely.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Churchill And Truman Last Met Officially At Potsdam; Truman Has Chance To Sell Churchill On European Unity; "Winnie" Still Thinks Of Empire

WASHINGTON — The last time Winston Churchill met in an official conference with Harry Truman, he was on the ebb-tide of a great and glorious career as war prime minister; Truman had just taken over the complex burdens of Franklin Roosevelt.

That was at Potsdam. The other figure at Potsdam was Stalin, and Churchill has never forgotten how Truman—new, nervous, peppery—began that session.

He began it by bawling out Stalin for being late. The train through Poland was one day late arriving, and Truman, without directly referring to this, delivered a 20-minute lecture to the Russian dictator that sessions would begin on time, would be conducted with regularity, with a definite agenda, and so on.

During the lecture, Churchill and Jimmy Byrnes, then secretary of State, exchanged glances. They wished they could find some way to soft-pedal the new President. But they couuldn't tug at the Truman coat-tails. And after it was all over and Secretary Byrnes was about to give Truman a friendly suggestion that the time to bawl out Stalin was when the conference was deadlocked, not when it started, General Vaughan piped up to tell Truman how wonderful the bawling out had been.

A few days later, Winston Churchill went down to overwhelming defeat in the British elections, packed up and departed from Potsdam, leaving Harry Truman to pilot Anglo-American relations over the uncharted seas of the stormy post-war world.

Ebb-tide of Empire

Truman and Churchill met again at Fulton, Mo., in 1946, but Churchill was only an ordinary citizen then and there were no problems to discuss.

Today Churchill comes back at the ebb-tide of his life, at the ebb-tide of the British Empire. He will try to recover for the empire, and he will try to recover the policies dropped when he was defeated at Potsdam.

He will not find things quite the same as during his previous conference with Mr. Truman, however, nor on his previous visits to the White House. Mr. Truman is older, more experienced, but just as peppery, just as inclined to bawl people out. In fact, some of his advisers have feared he might bawl out Churchill himself for proposing another meeting of the Big Three—Stalin, Truman and Churchill.

If Mr. Truman bawled out Mr. Churchill regarding the unity of Europe, it might set a new milestone for world peace. For most of Europe will be watching the Churchill-Truman conference to see whether the United States follows Churchill's lead for the disunity of Europe, or whether Churchill follows our lead for the unification of Europe.

So if Mr. Truman took Winston to task on this vital policy, he would get cheers, not only from most of the prime ministers but from the ordinary folks of Europe.

Truman is more likely, however, to deliver a lecture not on this major issue, but on the much less important matter of Churchill's idea of a Big-Three meeting. For HST has repeatedly stated that it was up to Stalin to come to see him, not vice versa. And Mr. Truman was a bit irked when the new prime minister would not listen to the advice of our American embassy in London to omit from a recent speech all reference to a Big Three meeting.

Another thing Churchill will find different is the atmosphere around the White House. During war days, the White House became a sort of second home to Winston. He and his personal staff occupied a suite of rooms in the White House and the PM used to thump down the corridor to the bedroom of the President in his slippers, a gold kimono flapping round his half-naked torso at all hours of the night, in order to push British policy across on the sometimes reluctant Roosevelt.

3 A. M. Conferences

These midnight conferences became so routine that American admirals and generals worried about them. Churchill has the habit of not getting up until 10 or 11, then going to bed after lunch and sleeping most of the afternoon. Much of his most important business, therefore, is carried on between the end of dinner at 10 p. m. and bedtime at 3 a. m.

These late hours, American military claimed, wore Roosevelt out. Furthermore they suspected that the British prime minister chose them to discuss important decisions, because a weary FDR was more likely to compromise; second, because the military was not around during these nocturnal conferences to object to Churchillian decisions.

Be that as it may, Harry Truman is not going in for these late parleys. He has already sent word to the British embassy that his bedtime is around 10 p. m. and he will not be able to confer with Churchill later than 9 p. m.

Pathetic Heroic Picture

In a way Winston Churchill presents a pathetic picture on his present mission—the last great defender of an empire that is no more.

When he was wartime leader of Britain, Winston told Roosevelt he had not been made prime minister to "liquidate the British Empire." Yet he now faces an empire shorn of India, grasping desperately to retain Suez, with iron deposits exhausted and coal getting lower, thinner and more expensive to mine.

Yet Churchill still thinks in terms of empire in those lush days when he was a buccaneering war correspondent in the Sudan and the Punjab—the days when the world shook whenever the British lion roared.

Intertwined with Churchill's past is one great policy which he has always followed — friendship with the United States. Sometimes that friendship has been a slightly domineering partnership wherein John Bull piped the tune and Uncle Sam paid the bill. Nevertheless Churchill has fundamentally and continuously felt that British and American friendship was the best guarantee of the peace of the world—though the empire, of course, always came first.

If now, in his meeting with Truman, he can build on top of that friendship foundation a policy of European unity, regardless of the old empire, then the peace for which he and the world have groped finally may be fulfilled.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Return Of Churchill

Among Britishers, none appeals to the American imagination as does Winston Churchill. As British as John Bull, he has an instinct for American atmosphere and personality.

He comes to repair the damage done to Anglo-American relations by the British Socialists, the pro-British excesses of Dean Acheson and those Americans who are captives of British culture. In a word, he must recognize, as few of his countrymen, do, that Americans who are more British than American are as offensive to most Americans as those who are more pro-Russian than they are pro-American. The American people are turning from a synthetic globalism, which has brought nothing but misery and death, to patriotism, which built our country.

Churchill is neither a Socialist nor a globalist. He is a British imperialist who did not take office to preside over the dissolution of the British Empire. He represents in his person not only a country, but a civilization.

Yet, it is impossible for him not to recognize three major historic factors which may, in the broadest sense, be producing the forces that will reduce Great Britain to a secondary role. These are:

1. The rise of new civilizations, out of war and revolution, which contest Anglo-Saxon supremacy and superiority not only from the economic and political standpoint but also on a racial basis;

2. The reduction of the authority in world affairs of the processing nations, with the attendant wealth that comes from banking, shipping and insurance. The automatic machine reduces the advantages of human skills and even the so-called "know-how" of experience. This new industrial revolution is already having far-reaching effects upon the great colonial powers;

3. The rise of new empires—the Soviet empire; the Moslem cultural empire; the Latins, perhaps under Spanish or Argentinian leadership; the emergence of Soviet China as a military power; the expansion of the Soviet periphery toward the Indian countries — these historic factors can only be ignored by a political ostrich—a description that can never fit Winston Churchill. Among these new empires, military operations are not conventional, involving the Anglo-American countries in major difficulties.

The British, as the Americans, are being forced to recognize that inaccurately described racial problems move upon the current canvas with greater vigor than either economic or political problems.

A Pakistani will not, for instance, accept the Anglo-Saxon concept of "white superiority," which has not foundation in science or history.

This is tough business and difficult to discuss in the United States where the Negro problem arouses deep emotions. Yet, we are piling up casualties in Korea over precisely this problem. I can say from my own long experience in Asia that if we spent billions upon billions on that continent to make ourselves popular and to engage the good-will of those peoples, we shall fail as long as those peoples believe that we believe that we are superior because of race.

True, Soviet Russia is doing a masterly job stimulating racial antagonism. They will profit greatly out of the stupidities of the Florida bombings. But long before Soviet Russian propaganda appeared on the scene, what in Asia is called "anti-colonialism," which is racial, not nationalistic, was a force. I first encountered it in China as early as 1918 and in Japan in 1920. The Japanese Black Dragon Society, headed by Mitsuru Toyama, was already a force.

Churchill undoubtedly comes here for money, but he is no arrogant beggar like his Socialist predecessors whom our State Department supported. He has pride of country. Yet, he must face frankly the cold fact that most Americans find distasteful the British political affinity for Chinese Communists who massacre Americans, particularly prisoners of war.

He would be well advised to reject the counsel of the emotionally captive pro-Britishers who feel that England can do no wrong even if his name is Attlee or Bevan.

British policy in Asia can no longer dominate American policy in Asia, and even Dean Acheson accepts a medal from the Jewish War Veterans because there are no Arab voters in critical states in an election year. Churchill will grasp the essence of that because he understands votes. He can discover the pressure of public opinion here on such questions as China, Korea, Israel, Iran and Egypt. We are not going along with colonialism.

Winston Churchill is preferable, from an American standpoint, to British socialism, headed by the pro-Russian Aneurin Bevan. But he needs to recognize that, in 1952, the American people will no longer support.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—There is something incongruous about the scramble in the Republican party for a chance to win the nomination for the Presidency when a close look at what confusing and oppressive problems surround the present incumbent of the White House might logically cause everyone else to shun the job.

For the truth is the Presidency has become an almost impossible task for one man. Even with the best intentions in the world, Mr. Truman has sought to meet his responsibilities by delegating power and authority to individual cabinet officers or to heads of agencies. That formula will not work any longer.

For government by delegation to a single cabinet officer is still one-man government. No one man is able nowadays to make all the decisions entrusted to him. The problem, for example, of making international policies today is in reality something for conference and committee or for action by a chosen group.

One-Man Decisions Incredible

It is incredible that decisions are made today in Washington in the field of foreign policy by one man—the Secretary of State or by one assistant in a specialized field.

It is incredible that the Secretary of State makes the decisions that restrict the action of the Department of Defense.

It is incredible that there is no national council which actually takes the responsibility for the calculated risks in foreign policy.

The other day a member of the cabinet of the late President Roosevelt asked the writer if the decision to go into Korea was a wise one.

The answers which this correspondent made are given here merely to illustrate the lack of policy in that all-important situation which has since had consequences that have affected America in the ecnomic, political and foreign fields. Here is not one but a series of answers to the question: "Should we have gone into Korea?"

1. If intervention in Korea was justified, then the top command in the United States was asleep at the switch. We had no expeditionary force in Japan beforehand but merely an occupation army unequipped for any such service as Korea required.

2. If we intended to protect our frontiers in 1950, then the top command should have insisted ahead of time on putting enough naval, air and ground forces in Okinawa or Japan to take care of the emergencies that might come in the Far East in the cold war.

3. If, in intervening in Korea, it was not intended to conduct the operation with maximum force, as General MacArthur or any other purely military man would have recommended, then it was a mistake ever to have gone into Korea.

4. If the decision to intervene in Korea was a sound one, then the UN members should have been obliged to supply proportionate forces and, if these were not forthcoming, the American military commander should have been given a free hand to secure his objectives by maximum force.

5. If the United States feared that maximum force in Korea meant a third world war and if fear of a third world war is a justified reason for hesitation, the decision to take no risks should have been made before committing any troops to Korea.

6. The decision to intervene was justified on the assumption that the UN would furnish adequate support. It was worth while making that decision if only to discover that the UN is incapable of furnishing collective security and that regional alliances alone can afford security.

Group Decision Needed

Now, irrespective of whether the foregoing answers will be accepted as persuasive, there can be no doubt that decisions were involved before and after the Korean intervention which should have been appraised not by the President and his Secretary of State alone but by a group of the ablest men in the military, the diplomatic and the legislative departments of the government. All these calculated risks should have been weighed on a long-range basis before Korea.

The tragedy is that no such top council has been functioning in our government. The National Security Council created by Congress is a paper organization which has not been doing the job intended for it by Congress. The so-called top command is a myth. The lack of collaboration between all factors in government who could formulate a long-range policy is one of the weaknesses in our present system.

Whether a new President of the United States would change this is difficult to conjecture, but the present-day conception of the Presidency is outmoded. The British cabinet system is far better in one respect at least—it is a collaboration of the best minds in the majority party, whereas in America the cabinet is just a group of executive administrators who know only their own departmental problems. Eighty billions for armament without a planned foreign policy is like pulling big guns up to the firing lines without a range finder or without aerial reconnaissance.

An Epoch Continues

By MARK SULLIVAN

Out of Moscow on January 2 came a dispatch which bears not at all on the present, but bears very much on how the present came to be what it is. The dispatch was an obituary. Maxim Litvinov had been long in retirement, but 19 years ago he had been one of two principal figures in an event which for America was the beginning of an epoch—an epoch of which the end is not in sight and the continuation of which determines the most important of our national activities.

In 1933 communism as an ideology and form of government had been in existence for 16 years, beginning with the Russian revolution of 1917. Throughout the period recognition of the Communist government of Russia had been continuously withheld by four Presidents—Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. We had had no official relations with that government. Franklin Roosevelt, however, in the first year of his administration, gave recognition, and in the negotiations preceding, the Russian representative was Litvinov. He, to assure Roosevelt and America, wrote:

"It will be the fixed policy of the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to respect scrupulously the indisputable rights of the United States to order its own life within its own jurisdiction within its own way, and to refrain from any interference in any manner in the internal affairs of the United States." To this, Roosevelt replied that he was glad to have this expressed assurance of the "fixed policy" of Russia.

Recognition by our government was an immense advantage to the Russian Communists. Before that, access by them to the United States had been largely furtive, they had been as a rule smugglers of propaganda, secret foreign agent of subversion. Now however they had sanction. They could have an embassy in Washington, and consulates in cities which could be centers for spreading communism. Moreover, recognition by our government conferred respectability, it lulled popular suspicion of communism, encouraged persons who were partisans of it or felt one degree or another of toleronce for it.

Recognition of Communist Russia in 1933 was followed by other steps even more helpful. In 1941, we took a step that was much more than diplomatic recognition, that was indeed a direct and concrete help to the military strength of Russia. Preceding 1941, Russia and Germany, dictator Stalin and dictator Hitler, had been for some two years in cooperation. They had divided Poland between them and were engaged in what amounted to a division of Europe between them. Suddenly, in June, 1941, Hitler turned upon Stalin, sent his troops into Russia.

In the conflict thus arising we took sides with Russia, gave materials for war and other forms of help. Among our people and among spokesmen of opinion there was bitter opposition to our action, bitter denunciation of Russia and of communism. Later, however, after we were involved in world war by the Japanese attack upon us at Pearl Harbor, informal help to Russia became formel alliance with her. In this condition, criticism of Russian communism came into disfavor, almost it was regarded as lack of patriotism.

FDR's Decisions Helped

This restraint of public opinion, companied by decisions by President Roosevelt during the war, which gave military and territorial advance to Russian communism in Europe and in Asia, which contributed to the power which is now a threat to us and obliges us to make the tremendous defense effort we are now engaged in. The restraint upon public opinion continued throughout organization of the United Nations in 1945 and for some two years after. It was not until about 1947 that we recognized what confronted us.

It is frequently said that the Presidential election this year will be a verdict of the country on the conduct of our relations with Communist Russia. The administration, quite naturally, would prefer that the verdict be on what hopes it has for the future about relations with Communist Russia. It obviously finds hope in the strengthening of the armed forces of the United States ond the other free nations that has taken place since Korea. But there is likelihood that many voters will prefer to decide upon the past record.

Seven Injured In Series Of Car Accidents

Bus Driver Is Seriously Hurt

Seven persons were injured in a series of accidents in the past two days in this area. Three sustained serious injuries.

Earl Blauch, 59, Short Gap, W. Va., school bus driver, is in "poor" condition according to attaches at Memorial Hospital. He suffered a fractured skull when he was struck by an auto at 7:40 a. m. yesterday while crossing Route 28 at Short Gap. Police identified the driver as Elwood Bevans, Keyser.

Police said Blauch, a poultry raiser and school bus driver at Short Gap, attempted to start his bus. A truck driver offered to pull the stalled vehicle and, according to Trooper J. W. Bowley of the Keyser detachment, Blauch was hit as he crossed the highway to get a tow rope. An investigation continues.

A Westernport motorist, Fred P. Ack, of 311 Walnut Street, is in Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, with a fractured left leg, abrasions and lacerations, State Police report.

Car Hit Culvert

His condition last night was reported by attaches as "good." He was operating an automobile when it struck a culvert about 11 p. m. Thursday at Dawson on Route 220. A passenger in his vehicle Dale Schell, 34, of Keyser, suffered a fractured left leg, fractured left knee and lacerations. His condition is reported as "fair."

William Largent, 28, is in "fair" condition at Memorial Hospital here suffering head injuries received when the automobile he was driving overturned on Route 36 between Barton and Westernport about 1:30 a. m. yesterday, State Police report.

X-rays have been taken according to attaches, but results are not known. Largent was home on leave from the Navy when the mishap occurred. Authorities said he lost control of the car. It climbed a small bank and turned over.

Local Woman Injured

Mrs. Eva Sisk, 37, of 518 Fectig Avenue, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday about 5:20 p. m. suffering injuries reportedly received in a head-on collision involving two cars near Centerville.

She received a fractured right wrist, lacerations below the right eye and bruises. Her condition is reported as "satisfactory" by attaches and X-rays will be taken. Details of the mishap were not known last night.

A Lonaconing miner, William C. Turnbull, 45, was injured while at work yesterday morning at Bivecol Coal Company, on Big Vein Hill in that community. According to a fellow worker, Turnbull was hit by a piece of coal while digging in the mine and was injured about the head. He was brought to Memorial Hospital where his condition is reported as "good."

Child Recovers

James Murray, 50, of 306 Harrison Street, was in good condition last night at Memorial Hospital where he was admitted for observation early Thursday after falling down a flight of stairs at his home. He suffered a fractured nose, attaches report.

Two-year-old Janice McCagh, daughter of Mrs. Edward McCagh, Cash Valley Road, was discharged from Memorial Hospital yesterday where she was admitted Thursday after developing a choking spell at her home. City firemen and State Police took her to the hospital.

Rock Slide Closes Tri-Towns Road

A rock and dirt slide yesterday morning blocked the road between Westernport and Luke.

The thawing weather and rains were blamed for the slide. Last night the road still was not open to traffic. As a consequence traffic from Luke had to be rerouted through Piedmont, W. Va.

Police reported that no injuries or property damage resulted from the slide.

Fireman Dies As He Falls In Path Of B & O Freight

John J. Counihan Is Killed Near Rawlings

A fireman was killed near Rawlings early yesterday morning when he misunderstood an engineer's instructions and leaped from the cab of a westbound Baltimore and Ohio locomotive into the path of an eastbound freight train.

John Joseph Counihan, 34, of RFD 5, Winchester Road, father of two children, had been employed by the company for only two weeks prior to the mishap.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said Counihan suffered the loss of his left leg below the knee, a fractured skull and head laceration. He attributed death to loss of blood.

Fireman Also Leaps

Chester F. Williams, superintendent of the railroad's Cumberland Division, filed this report to Baltimore headquarters:

"The engineer reached for the injector to turn fresh water into the boiler and found the handle had become disconnected. The train was moving slowly so he left his seat and stepped out on the running board along the side of the locomotive to connect the injector handle. As he stepped from the cab he shouted to Counihan to turn on a blower.

"The head brakeman, also in the cab, said he thought the engineer had shouted that the locomotive was about to blow up. He jumped from the right side of the cab and the fireman leaped off the other.

"Counihan had been on the road only two weeks."

The engineer was W. D. Ambrose of Fort Ashby, W. Va. With him in the cab of the westbound freight was J. E. Harrison, the head brakeman.

Ambrose estimated his train was going about 15 miles an hour at the time of the accident at 2:36 a.m., about an eighth of a mile north of Rawlings, eight miles southwest of Cumberland.

Eastbound Passenger Train No. 24 was flagged by the crew of Counihan's freight and backed up into Rawlings with the injured fireman. He was put in an ambulance there for the trip to Memorial Hospital.

Formerly At Celanese

Counihan, up until his employment with the railroad, was a spinner at the Amcelle Plant of Celanese Corporation. He was furloughed in October, members of the family report.

During World War II, Counihan served as a seaman in the Navy at Bainbridge and Norfolk, Va. He was married to the former Miss Edith Catherine Carlisle.

He was born in Cumberland July 2, 1917, the son of John F. and Teresa (Hart) Counihan, 166 Thomas Street.

His children are Loretta, 13, and Robert 11. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. A. P. Solomon, Rock Hill, S. C., and Mrs. Ruth Blake, this city, and two brothers, Adrian H. Counihan, stationed in the Navy at Norfolk, and Joseph Counihan, this city.

Counihan received his education at St. Mary's School and Fort Hill High School.

A funeral service will be held Monday at 2 p. m. at Scarpelli Funeral Home with Rev. C. F. Frith, pastor of LaVale Baptist Church, officiating. Interment will be in Zion Memorial Park.

County's Corn Borer Average Figured Low

Only Five Others Bettered Record

Only five Southern Maryland counties had fewer corn borers than Allegany County, according to a report on the annual fall survey of Maryland corn borer population.

The report also discloses that the number of corn borers in the state in 1951 was higher than in 1950 but below the five-year average for the state. The average number of corn borers per 100 stalks of corn was 66 in the fall of 1951 compared to the five-year average of 19. Borers were found in 192 of the 230 corn fields inspected. Ten fields were inspected in each of Maryland's 23 counties.

In Allegany County, where only seven of the 10 fields were infested the borers per 100 plants ranged between 20 and 64 and averaged only 27. Only other counties with lower average records were Calvert, with seven; Charles, nine; Prince George's, 11; Anne Arundel, 19, and St. Mary's, 22. Kent County's record matched Allegany's. Garrett County's average was 65 borers per 100 plants, higher than 12 other Maryland counties.

Washington County, Allegany's eastern neighbor, had the state's worst 1951 record, with an average of 160 corn borers per 100 plants. Nearest to Washington County were Montgomery County with 136 and Frederick County with 113.

Figures for the survey were released by T. L. Bissell, University of Maryland extension entomologist. H. S. McConnell, associate professor of entomology, conducted the survey.

The main method of control that the farmer himself can apply to corn borers is to plow under all corn stalks, or shred them with a stalk shredder before May 1, 1952. When plowing it is important to do a clean job so that no stalks are exposed which can harbor the borers.

keenly interested in the operation of this city for a number of years and had seriously considered filing in the 1950 election.

He and his wife, the former Nora Morgan, of Westernport, have one son, R. Stanton Byer, this city.

The announcement yesterday followed closely after Mayor Thomas S. Post, mayor of this city since 1944, announced he would not seek re-election.

Informed sources report two members of the present council are seriously considering filing for mayor and at least two newcomers are reported actively interested in the post.

Former Mates Return To Pen

Two former associates in the Ohio State Penitentiary are scheduled to leave Allegany County Jail this morning to return to the prison in Columbus as parole violators.

One of them is Frank J. Toth, alias Frank Joseph Etters and Frank Dawson, of West Salem, Ohio, who was arersted here December 19 after he had gone on a spree writing worthless checks. He admitted to city police that he had passed some 15 phony checks since his parole from the Ohio Penitentiary in June. He had served 25 months of a 20-year sentence for forgery.

When Probation Officer Howard Swank from the Buckeye State arrived in Cumberland to get Toth yesterday he had with him one of Toth's former neighbors in the penitentiary. He was William Seevers of Columbus, Ohio, whom Swank had brought this far from Westchester County, N. Y., where he had been arrested as a parole violator.

After spending last night here, Swank is planning to head back to Columbus with his two parole violators.

City Will Receive Dreyer's Equipment

The truck, boats and equipment which the late Frederick C. Dreyer used in his many rescues during past years are being turned over to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland.

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday instructed Clerk James G. Stevenson to write the Mayor and City Council so informing them. Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long requested this action. Dreyer, who was county treasurer, died last September.

Seven Injured In Series Of Car Accidents

Bus Driver Is Seriously Hurt

Seven persons were injured in a series of accidents in the past two days in this area. Three sustained serious injuries.

Earl Blauch, 59, Short Gap, W. Va., school bus driver, is in "poor" condition according to attaches at Memorial Hospital. He suffered a fractured skull when he was struck by an auto at 7:40 a. m. yesterday while crossing Route 28 at Short Gap. Police identified the driver as Elwood Bevans, Keyser.

Police said Blauch, a poultry raiser and school bus driver at Short Gap, attempted to start his bus. A truck driver offered to pull the stalled vehicle and, according to Trooper J. W. Bowley of the Keyser detachment, Blauch was hit as he crossed the highway to get a tow rope. An investigation continues.

E. Merl Young Fails To Answer Perjury Charge

Rosenbaum Pleads Innocent In RFC Case

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—Joseph H. Rosenbaum pleaded innocent in federal court today to perjury charges arising from a Senate inquiry into influence peddling at the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But E. Merl Young failed to appear to answer similar charges.

Both men figured prominently in testimony concerning the purchase of a $9,450 royal pastel mink coat for Young's wife, Lauretta, then a White House stenographer.

Rosenbaum is a Washington lawyer with a successful record of getting RFC loans for his clients. Young, who began his Washington career as a $25 a week government messenger, has been described as an affluent contact man who once enjoyed an entree to the White House.

Neither Rosenbaum, Young, nor Young's brother, Herschel, was on hand when their perjury cases were called today. U. S. District Judge James R. Kirkland ordered arrest warrants issued.

About two hours later, before his warrant could be served, Rosenbaum appeared with his attorney, William E. Leahy, to enter his plea. Judge Kirkland fixed bond at $1,000 and released Rosenbaum in the custody of his attorney until it is posted.

Leahy told reporters his client did not know he was supposed to be in court this morning.

At Homestead, Fla., where Meri Young and his wife are now operating the White Heron Inn, Mrs. Young expressed astonishment that her husband was expected to appear today.

She said that Young was somewhere around town, possibly out fishing, and she was sure he didn't know about having to be in Washington.

CHILD BRIDE COMES HOME—Eva Dean Baggett, 11, returned from a nine-day honeymoon yesterday after her marriage to a boarder in her father's mountain home near Chattanooga, Tenn., was declared void. She will go back to her fifth grade classes Monday but says she will return to Coal Miner Arvil Ott, 23, "when I'm old enough."

Price Hikes For Ford Cars Are Authorized

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (INS) — The government today authorized price boosts for Ford, Mercury and Lincoln passenger cars but the increases are less than what the manufacturers wanted.

Ford Motor Co., maker of the three cars, was told it can raise the factory wholesale ceilings on Fords by 4.97 per cent, on Mercurys by 3.45 per cent and on Lincolns 5.19 per cent.

While exact amounts of the increases in dollars and cents was not known, Office of Price Stabilization officials estimated they might range from $65 to $104 for Fords, $67 to $86 for Mercurys and $130 to $201 for Lincolns.

Actor Gabby Hayes' Secretary Is Robbed

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Gabby Hayes' secretary was robbed of more than $600 today in the actor's penthouse apartment while the film and television portrayer of western characters chatted with his wife and their niece.

Gabby knew nothing of the robbery until after the two men who posed as detectives had fled with their loot—a $500 diamond ring, $100 in cash and a wrist watch belonging to Miss Helen Kelly.

"Why didn't you shout, I would have got them," the actor said to Miss Kelly when she reported the burglary. Hayes has gun permits in several states.

300 Dead In Quake

TOKYO, Jan. 5 (Saturday) (INS) —The Peiping radio reported today that 300 persons were killed and 1,537 injured by an earthquake which rocked Western Yunnan Province in China on Dec. 21.

Rose "Lockout" Taken To Court

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — Billy Rose went to court today to demand that his estranged wife, Eleanor Holm, open the door of their lavish town house and let him in.

The pint-sized theatrical producer has been locked out ever since he and his wife split up over his romance with blonde Joyce Mathews, former wife of Milton Berle.

Now, Billy said, he wants in so he can look over his valuable paintings and pick up some heavy clothes against New York's winter weather.

In a Supreme Court affidavit, Rose asked for an injunction giving him the right to "freely enter and leave at any time" the Beekman Place home.

He said he was upset by a newspaper item that Miss Holm had mounted a valuable Rembrandt painting "behind a front door so that any attempt to force the door open would destroy the painting for which I paid $75,000."

Rose said he didn't know whether that was true or not.

Doomed Killer's Story Wins Him Execution Stay

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 4. (AP)—James Merlin Leiby won a reprieve from the Florida electric chair today with a story that he overheard two accused negro rapists plot an escape attempt which cost one of them his life.

At the request of Sheriff Willis V. McCall of Lake County, Gov. Fuller Warren today recalled the death warrant under which Leiby was scheduled to die at 9 a. m., next Monday for the 1949 slaying of a traveling companion from Maryland.

Sheriff McCall is the officer who shot Samuel Shepperd to death and wounded Walter Lee Irvin while taking them to Tavares Nov. 6 for a hearing on a motion to change the scene of their second trial for rape.

McCall claimed he shot after they attacked him. Irvin said the sheriff shot without provocation. A coroner's jury exonerated the sheriff but the Federal Bureau of Investigation has continued its inquiry into the shooting.

Stassen Stands Firm On "Loafer" Statement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen said today he meant it when he declared last week that if elected President he would fire "200,000 loafers" from the federal payroll.

Stassen's original statement brought letters of protest from L. C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes; L. E. George, president of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, and James A. Campbell, president of the American Federation of Government Employes. They denied there was any great number of "loafers" getting government pay.

Packinghouse Walkout

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP) — About 125,000 AFL meat workers today accepted a six cents an hour wage increase from the nation's meat packers.

But large numbers of CIO packinghouse workers walked off their jobs in several cities in brief demonstrations for other benefits besides the six cents an hour accepted by the AFL.

Mink Farmers Hit 'Damaging Publicity'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The nation's mink farmers complained today that all the stories about mink coats acquired by Washington political figures have placed an "unjust stigma" on their product and hurt business.

They appealed to the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau Federation for help in offsetting the "false and damaging publicity" about mink coats which they said had arisen from recent congressional investigations.

In letters to the farm organizations, Harold W. Reed of Elkhorn, Wis., representing mink ranchers' associations, demanded:

"Does it seem fair to let the misdemeanors of a few Washington politicians put the American fur farmer in a precarious position?"

E. Merl Young Fails To Answer Perjury Charge

Rosenbaum Pleads Innocent In RFC Case

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—Joseph H. Rosenbaum pleaded innocent in federal court today to perjury charges arising from a Senate inquiry into influence peddling at the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But E. Merl Young failed to appear to answer similar charges.

Both men figured prominently in testimony concerning the purchase of a $9,450 royal pastel mink coat for Young's wife, Lauretta, then a White House stenographer.

Rosenbaum is a Washington lawyer with a successful record of getting RFC loans for his clients. Young, who began his Washington career as a $25 a week government messenger, has been described as an affluent contact man who once enjoyed an entree to the White House.

Neither Rosenbaum, Young, nor Young's brother, Herschel, was on hand when their perjury cases were called today. U. S. District Judge James R. Kirkland ordered arrest warrants issued.

About two hours later, before his warrant could be served, Rosenbaum appeared with his attorney, William E. Leahy, to enter his plea. Judge Kirkland fixed bond at $1,000 and released Rosenbaum in the custody of his attorney until it is posted.

Leahy told reporters his client did not know he was supposed to be in court this morning.

At Homestead, Fla., where Merl Young and his wife are now operating the White Heron Inn, Mrs. Young expressed astonishment that her husband was expected to appear today.

She said that Young was somewhere around town, possibly out fishing, and she was sure he didn't know about having to be in Washington.

Price Hikes For Ford Cars Are Authorized

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (INS) — The government today authorized price boosts for Ford, Mercury and Lincoln passenger cars but the increases are less than what the manufacturers wanted.

Ford Motor Co., maker of the three cars, was told it can raise the factory wholesale ceilings on Fords by 4.97 per cent, on Mercurys by 3.45 per cent and on Lincolns 5.19 per cent.

While exact amounts of the increases in dollars and cents was not known, Office of Price Stabilization officials estimated they might range from $65 to $104 for Fords, $67 to $86 for Mercurys and $130 to $201 for Lincolns.

Actor Gabby Hayes' Secretary Is Robbed

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Gabby Hayes' secretary was robbed of more than $600 today in the actor's penthouse apartment while the film and television portrayer of western characters chatted with his wife and their niece.

Gabby knew nothing of the robbery until after the two men who posed as detectives had fled with their loot—a $500 diamond ring, $100 in cash and a wrist watch belonging to Miss Helen Kelly.

"Why didn't you shout, I would have got them," the actor said to Miss Kelly when she reported the burglary. Hayes has gun permits in several states.

She will go back to her fifth grade classes Monday but says she will return to Coal Miner Arvil Ott, 23, "when I'm old enough."

Rose "Lockout" Taken To Court

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — Billy Rose went to court today to demand that his estranged wife, Eleanor Holm, open the door of their lavish town house and let him in.

The pint-sized theatrical producer has been locked out ever since he and his wife split up over his romance with blonde Joyce Mathews, former wife of Milton Berle.

Now, Billy said, he wants in so he can look over his valuable paintings and pick up some heavy clothes against New York's winter weather.

In a Supreme Court affidavit, Rose asked for an injunction giving him the right to "freely enter and leave at any time" the Beekman Place home.

He said he was upset by a newspaper item that Miss Holm had mounted a valuable Rembrandt painting "behind a front door so that any attempt to force the door open would destroy the painting for which I paid $75,000."

Rose said he didn't know whether that was true or not.

LaSalle Edges Allegany, 43-42, In Overtime Contest

Explorers Win On Field Goal By Ackerman

800 Fans See City Contest Go Into Two Extra Stanzas

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

A spectacular hook shot from the corner by Paul Ackerman with 55 seconds remaining to play in a sudden death second overtime period brought an uphill victory to a fighting LaSalle High quintet over Allegany's Campers on the SS. Peter and Paul court last night. The score was 43 to 42.

The end came with dramatic abruptness and left a screaming throng of some 800 fans limp with excitement. Allegany led by a single point in the second extra stanza when Ackerman connected ending the game the instant the ball dropped through the netting.

Climactic Finish

In as climactic a finish as ever witnessed by basketball followers the first clash between the city rivals this year was sent into overtime by a three-quarter floor length field goal by Denny Shuck of the Explorers who shot with desperation with just six seconds to play in the regulation game.

Trailing 38-34 with 8 seconds left LaSalle tallied on a bucket by Marty Mullaney, standout pivot man for Coach Art Slocum's five. Mullaney was fouled while shooting by Dave Steele, lanky Camper center, but the Explorers waived the charity toss in a gambling effort to get another basket and deadlock the score. Mullaney tossed the ball into play at mid-court and Shuck, on the receiving end, let go with his high arching heave that hit basket dead center.

Then just as the final whistle blew Smokey Howe, Camper guard, was fouled by Ackerman while dribbling down court. With the game in his palm and an Allegany victory assured if he sinks the penalty heave the slim Alco athlete stepped to the 15-foot line. With all eyes watching and breaths held, he shot — and missed! The score was 38-38.

Second Overtime Period

Playing a regulation three-minute overtime period Howe and Ackerman traded foul shots before Shuck once more brought the crowd up screaming with a mid-court heave that just whistled through the hoop giving LaSalle a 41-39 edge — the first time in the ball game the Slocummen were ever ahead. A tip-in of a rebound with 20 seconds left by Steele knotted the count at 41-all for Allegany and sent the nip-and-tuck contest into the second overtime period.

This one was sudden death!

Under basketball rules a team which scores two points first in a sudden death period is the winner. Allegany tallied first when Howe dropped a charity toss through the net after being fouled by Ackerman. Then with 1½ minutes to go Russell Robertson was fouled by Nolan. And again, with the pressure mounting with each passing second, Allegany blew its chance to win. Robertson missed the foul shot!

LaSalle gained possession of the rebound and worked the ball basketward. Ackerman let go—and that was it!

AHS Hold Big Lead

Allegany hopped off to an early lead and was never headed or tied until Shuck's game-deadlocking set shot.

Coach Bill Bowers' charges led 12-7 at the quarter, 20-15 at halftime and 32-27 at the close of the third stanza. A brief flurry of baskets, three by Ronnie Sisk within the space of one minute, gave Allegany its biggest lead at 30-20 midway in the third period and the Bowersmen held a 37-29 advantage with 3:50 to go in the last quarter.

Mullaney, Shuck, Harris and Ackerman were standouts for LaSalle. Ackerman, playing just after recovering from the flu, was held scoreless in the first half but came back for 10 tallies.

Mullaney played perhaps his best

Westmont Cagers Face Allegany Here Tonight

Veteran Coaches Meet, Series Started In '27

Two real veterans of the coaching profession will match wits tonight when Coach Carl Engh sends his Westmont High School cagers of Johnstown, Pa., into action against Walter L. Bowers' Allegany High School Campers at 8 o'clock at Campobello.

Engh has been coaching high school basketball for 30 years while Bowers is in his 26th season as head man of AHS quints.

With the exception of two or three seasons, AHS and Westmont have been clashing on the court since 1927.

Clifton Van Roby and Eddie Diehl will officiate in tonight's game.

DeMolay and Allegany's Reserves will collide in the opener of the twin bill at 6:50.

Frostburg State Teachers are scheduled to windup a two-day road trip tonight with the Towson State Teachers at Towson in Baltimore county.

Carver High School will go to Moorefield, W. Va., tonight for boys' and girls' games with Sanders High School.

Bi-State League To Meet Sunday

Representatives To Vote On New Teams

The Bi-State Baseball League will hold an important meeting tomorrow at Mayfair Tavern, President Carl Dicken announced last night. The meeting will get underway at 1:30 p. m.

Revisions of the league's by-laws will be the principal topic for discussion by the team representatives, Dicken said. Also on the agenda tomorrow will be a vote to admit new teams into the circuit next season.

Teams desiring to enter the loop, Dicken added, should have a representative at the meeting to make application for a franchise.

Saturday, Jan. 12, the league will hold a dinner for team representatives and fans at Cas Taylor's, Dicken said. The dinner will begin at 6 p. m.

Vejar Cops 37th Bout

New Englander Beats Bolanos In Garden

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (INS)—Speedy Chico Vejar, 20-year-old New York University freshman, punched out a unanimous ten-round decision tonight at Madison Square Garden over Enrique Bolanos, the slightly faded veteran from Los Angeles.

Chico, although he suffered a bloody nose and a cut under his left eye, overcame Bolanos' greater experience to win seven rounds on the cards of Judge Arthur Aidala and Referee Ruby Goldstein and six on the tally sheet of Judge Frank Forbes.

Vejar weighed 146½ to Bolanos' 143. It was the most weight ever toted by Bolanos, who fought unsuccessfully three times for the lightweight title.

Jabbing effectively with a fast left, Vejar piled up a big advantage in the early rounds. Bolanos put on a determined two-fisted rally in the seventh and eighth but was in his most serious difficulty of the bout in the tenth.

It was Chico's 37th victory in 38 professional bouts.

Beall Noses Piedmont In Extra Period

Thompson's Basket Decides 48-46 Tilt In Mountain City

FROSTBURG, Jan. 4 — Paul Thompson drove in for a lay-up shot in the closing minute of an overtime period to give Beall High School a 48 to 46 decision over Piedmont (W. Va.) High School's Lions here tonight to square the season's series.

Thompson entered the game in a substitute's role in the third period when Enordo Arnone was ejected on personal fouls and the winning basket was the only one he scored.

Piedmont took a 9-7 lead at the quarter but at the halfway mark the score was knotted at 17-17. Beall held a 33-32 edge when the third period ended and a field goal by Jackie Junkins deadlocked the game at 44-all, requiring the playing of an extra period. The count was 46-46 when Thompson settled the issue.

Beall thus avenged a 39-34 setback at Piedmont's hands.

Don Blank and Frank Buskirk played outstanding games for Coach Ed Finzel's aggregation. The former collected 16 points. Jimmy Bell and Bobby Niland, the sharpshooting freshman, banged in 20 and 15 points to pace the Lions. Bell scored 10 points in 15 tries at the charity stripe.

Women Golfers Tied In Jacksonville Open

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP)—National open champion Betsy Rawls and Georgia's Louise Suggs clipped three strokes off par today to take the first round lead in the $3,300 Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Rawls, Austin, Tex., playing her first tournament in Florida as a professional, shot 38-35—73 and Miss Suggs, Carrollton, Ga., did it in 35-38—73.

They were one stroke ahead of the perennial women's champion, Babe Zaharias, Tampa, and amateur Mary Lena Faulk, Thomasville, Ga., who each were two under women's par 37-39—76 for the 6,282 yard Brentwood Municipal Course.

Weather Forces Postponement Of Fort Hill Game

Last night's sudden snowstorm forced postponement of Fort Hill's game with Martinsburg High's Bulldogs in the Sentinel gym here, Coach John J. Cavanaugh of Fort Hill announced.

The Martinsburg team, traveling by auto, was forced to turn back at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., when the storm conditions became critical, Cavanaugh stated.

Arrangements for rescheduling the contest will be made between Cavanaugh and Martinsburg's coach, John Cobourne, Monday.

Burke Is Leader At Los Angeles

Jack's 2-Under-Par 69 Sets Pace In Open

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP) — Turning on the heat with four birdies on the back nine, Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., climbed out in front of a star-shy field of rivals in the first round of the $17,500 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament late today.

The 29-year-old son of a former great Texas professional posted a 36-33-69 for a two under par performance before 2,300 galleryites gathered in the chill late evening at the Riviera Country Club.

Recovering from a shaky first nine over the par 35-36—71 course, stretched out to 7020 yards for this 26th edition of the L. A. Open, Burke finished one stroke in front of his nearest rivals and four shots ahead of the man regarded as the best in the lot, Lloyd Mangrum.

Mangrum shot a 36-37—73, duplicating the comparatively poor starting score he carded a year ago, when he went on to win the top money with a total of 280.

Pressing close behind the leading Burke were two "unknowns" to local fame, Long John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Al Brosch of Garden City, N. Y., each had 34-36—70.

Alone at par 71 was Paul Runyan of Pasadena.

Tied at 72 were E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., young Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., Willie Hunter, Jr., son of the home pro here, and the leading amateur of the day, Bud Holscher of Santa Monica.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, who had been picked to make a run for the $4,000 first prize, bowed out on the 11th hole, nursing a swollen wrist, sprained yesterday in a practice round.

Such stars as Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, and formidable players like Clayton Heafner, Dave Douglas and Chick Harbert passed up the tournament.

Bobcats Defeat Salisbury, 51-49

TOWSON, Md., Jan. 4.—Frostburg State Teachers' College crashed the win column for the first time this season when they defeated the Salisbury (Md.) Teachers' quint tonight on the Tawson Teachers' College court by the score of 51 to 49. The Western Marylanders had lost their first three games of the season.

Trailing 10-6 at the quarter and 27-24 at the halfway mark, the Mountain City quint forged to the fore in the third period at 36-34 and won out after a nip and tuck final stanza. Jimmy Jones' goal scored the goal that won the game.

Bradley of Salisbury headed the scoring procession with 19 points. Grayson and Moran with eight points each led the Frostburg attack while Kirk, Jones and Barham had seven tallies apiece.

Orioles Buy Hurler For Trade Purposes

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles announced today the purchase of Pitcher George McPhail, a 24-game winner in Class C competition, but said he probably won't even train with the club next spring.

Owner Jack Dunn said the International League Orioles obtained the 26-year-old righthanded pitcher from Schenectady of the Eastern League in a straight cash deal. Last year he won 24 and lost 8 with Pittsfield of the Class C Canadian-American League.

Dunn said that, despite his impressive record, McPhail will most likely be used as trading material for an infielder.

When he left the restaurant, Robinson discovered another award — a parking ticket on his flashy lilac-colored Cadillac sedan.

20,000 Expected At Mobile Game Today

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 4 (AP)—Fifty college football stars—including six All-Americas—make a slippery transition tomorrow from amateurism to professionalism.

The site will be a soggy, rain loaded field in Mobile in a game growing in importance by the year—the Senior Bowl.

Here in early January each year the final college game of the season is played. When players trot on the field their rating is as pure amateur as possible in the sense of subsidized college football.

When they leave the field they're professionals. Members of the winning team are "tainted" with $500 hard earned money. Members of the losing team get $400 each.

Flopped Financially

Two previous Senior Bowls flopped financially. The first was played in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1950.

Last January after the contest had been moved to Mobile, interest, fans and necessary operating cash increased—but not enough. A new Mobile group bought out the old Nashville, Tenn., owners.

This year?—local sponsors have their fingers crossed, their hopes up and their pocketbooks open. This game guarantees players their earnings, and sponsors are ready to make their word good with other funds should ticket sales fail to provide the treasury. A crowd of 20,000, which is a good possibility, would please everybody.

Neither earlier game lacked anything in the way of good, fan appealing football. The South won both games, by 22-13 and 19-18.

This year's squads—called North and South for convenience sake only—are collections of as good college talent as anybody will see on one field.

North Is Favored

South All-America second teamers are back Jim Dooley, Miami; Quarterback Babe Parilli, Kentucky; Quarterback Bill Wade, Vanderbilt; Tackle Bob Werckle, Vanderbilt, and Ted Daffer, Tennessee. Daffer was on the first All-America team of 1950.

Regardless of efforts to equalize the strength, the North is about a seven point favorite. The reasons—many Southerners played in bowl games and arrived late; the South is a passing team and recent rains have kept the field soggy and the North has the better line.

The kickoff is at 2:45 p. m. (EST).

No Pro Offers

HONOLULU, Jan. 4 (AP)—Big Bill McColl, Stanford's All-America end, said today he hasn't "given any serious thought to turning professional."

"I've had not offers yet," said McColl when asked about speculation by California sportswriters. He is here for Sunday's College All-Star Hula Bowl football clash with the Hawaii All-Stars.

LaSalle Edges Allegany, 43-42, In Overtime Contest

Explorers Win On Field Goal By Ackerman

800 Fans See City Contest Go Into Two Extra Stanzas

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

A spectacular hook shot from the corner by Paul Ackerman with 55 seconds remaining to play in a sudden death second overtime period brought an uphill victory to a fighting LaSalle High quintet over Allegany's Campers on the SS. Peter and Paul court last night. The score was 43 to 42.

The end came with dramatic abruptness and left a screaming throng of some 800 fans limp with excitement. Allegany led by a single point in the second extra stanza when Ackerman connected ending the game the instant the ball dropped through the netting.

Climactic Finish

In as climactic a finish as ever witnessed by basketball followers the first clash between the city rivals this year was sent into overtime by a three-quarter floor length field goal by Denny Shuck of the Explorers who shot with desperation with just six seconds to play in the regulation game.

Trailing 38-34 with 8 seconds left LaSalle tallied on a bucket by Marty Mullaney, standout pivot man for Coach Art Slocum's five. Mullaney was fouled while shooting by Dave Steele, lanky Camper center, but the Explorers waived the charity toss in a gambling effort to get another basket and deadlock the score. Mullaney tossed the ball into play at mid-court and Shuck, on the receiving end, let go with his high arching heave that hit basket dead center.

Then just as the final whistle blew Smokey Howe, Camper guard, was fouled by Ackerman while dribbling down court. With the game in his palm and an Allegany victory assured if he sinks the penalty heave the slim Alco athlete stepped to the 15-foot line. With all eyes watching and breaths held, he shot — and missed! The score was 38-38.

Second Overtime Period

Playing a regulation three-minute overtime period Howe and Ackerman traded foul shots before Shuck once more brought the crowd up screaming with a mid-court heave that just whistled through the hoop giving LaSalle a 41-39 edge — the first time in the ball game the Slocummen were ever ahead. A tip-in of a rebound with 20 seconds left by Steele knotted the count at 41-all for Allegany and sent the nip-and-tuck contest into the second overtime period.

This one was sudden death!

Under basketball rules a team which scores two points first in a sudden death period is the winner. Allegany tallied first when Howe dropped a charity toss through the net after being fouled by Ackerman. Then with 1½ minutes to go Russell Robertson was fouled by Nolan. And again, with the pressure mounting with each passing second, Allegany blew its chance to win. Robertson missed the foul shot!

LaSalle gained possession of the rebound and worked the ball basketward. Ackerman let go—and that was it!

AHS Hold Big Lead

Allegany hopped off to an early lead and was never headed or tied until Shuck's game-deadlocking set shot.

Coach Bill Bowers' charges led 12-7 at the quarter, 20-15 at halftime and 32-27 at the close of the third stanza. A brief flurry of baskets, three by Ronnie Sisk within the space of one minute, gave Allegany its biggest lead at 30-20 midway in the third period and the Bowersmen held a 37-29 advantage with 3:50 to go in the last quarter.

Mullaney, Shuck, Harris and Ackerman were standouts for LaSalle. Ackerman, playing just after recovering from the flu, was held scoreless in the first half but came back for 10 tallies.

Mullaney played perhaps his best

Bi-State League To Meet Sunday

Representatives To Vote On New Teams

The Bi-State Baseball League will hold an important meeting tomorrow at Mayfair Tavern, President Carl Dicken announced last night. The meeting will get underway at 1:30 p. m.

Revisions of the league's by-laws will be the principal topic for discussion by the team representatives, Dicken said. Also on the agenda tomorrow will be a vote to admit new teams into the circuit next season.

Teams desiring to enter the loop, Dicken added, should have a representative at the meeting to make application for a franchise.

Saturday, Jan. 12, the league will hold a dinner for team representatives and fans at Cas Taylor's, Dicken said. The dinner will begin at 6 p. m.

Vejar Cops 37th Bout

New Englander Beats Bolanos In Garden

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (INS)—Speedy Chico Vejar, 20-year-old New York University freshman, punched out a unanimous ten-round decision tonight at Madison Square Garden over Enrique Bolanos, the slightly faded veteran from Los Angeles.

Chico, although he suffered a bloody nose and a cut under his left eye, overcame Bolanos' greater experience to win seven rounds on the cards of Judge Arthur Aidala and Referee Ruby Goldstein and six on the tally sheet of Judge Frank Forbes.

Vejar weighed 146½ to Bolanos' 143. It was the most weight ever toted by Bolanos, who fought unsuccessfully three times for the lightweight title.

Jabbing effectively with a fast left, Vejar piled up a big advantage in the early rounds. Bolanos put on a determined two-fisted rally in the seventh and eighth but was in his most serious difficulty of the bout in the tenth.

It was Chico's 37th victory in 38 professional bouts.

Beall Noses Piedmont In Extra Period

Thompson's Basket Decides 48-46 Tilt In Mountain City

FROSTBURG, Jan. 4 — Paul Thompson drove in for a lay-up shot in the closing minute of an overtime period to give Beall High School a 48 to 46 decision over Piedmont (W. Va.) High School's Lions here tonight to square the season's series.

Thompson entered the game in a substitute's role in the third period when Enordo Arnone was ejected on personal fouls and the winning basket was the only one he scored.

Piedmont took a 9-7 lead at the quarter but at the halfway mark the score was knotted at 17-17. Beall held a 33-32 edge when the third period ended and a field goal by Jackie Junkins deadlocked the game at 44-all, requiring the playing of an extra period. The count was 46-46 when Thompson settled the issue.

Beall thus avenged a 39-34 setback at Piedmont's hands.

Don Blank and Frank Buskirk played outstanding games for Coach Ed Finzel's aggregation. The former collected 16 points. Jimmy Bell and Bobby Niland, the sharpshooting freshman, banged in 20 and 15 points to pace the Lions. Bell scored 10 points in 15 tries at the charity stripe.

Burke Is Leader At Los Angeles

Jack's 2-Under-Par 69 Sets Pace In Open

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP)—Turning on the heat with four birdies on the back nine, Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., climbed out in front of a star-shy field of rivals in the first round of the $17,500 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament late today.

The 29-year-old son of a former great Texas professional posted a 36-33-69 for a two under par performance before 2,300 galleryites gathered in the chill late evening at the Riviera Country Club.

Recovering from a shaky first nine over the par 35-36—71 course, stretched out to 7020 yards for this 26th edition of the L. A. Open, Burke finished one stroke in front of his nearest rivals and four shots ahead of the man regarded as the best in the lot, Lloyd Mangrum.

Mangrum shot a 36-37—73, duplicating the comparatively poor starting score he carded a year ago, when he went on to win the top money with a total of 280.

Pressing close behind the leading Burke were two "unknowns" to local fame, Long John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Al Brosch of Garden City, N. Y., each had 34-36—70.

Alone at par 71 was Paul Runyan of Pasadena.

Tied at 72 were E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill., young Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., Willie Hunter, Jr., son of the home pro here, and the leading amateur of the day, Bud Holscher of Santa Monica.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, who had been picked to make a run for the $4,000 first prize, bowed out on the 11th hole, nursing a swollen wrist, sprained yesterday in a practice round.

Such stars as Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, and formidable players like Clayton Heafner, Dave Douglas and Chick Harbert passed up the tournament.

Bobcats Defeat Salisbury, 51-49

TOWSON, Md., Jan. 4.—Frostburg State Teachers' College crashed the win column for the first time this season when they defeated the Salisbury (Md.) Teachers' quint tonight on the Tawson Teachers' College court by the score of 51 to 49. The Western Marylanders had lost their first three games of the season.

Trailing 10-6 at the quarter and 27-24 at the halfway mark, the Mountain City quint forged to the fore in the third period at 36-34 and won out after a nip and tuck final stanza. Jimmy Jones' goal scored the goal that won the game.

Bradley of Salisbury headed the scoring procession with 19 points. Grayson and Moran with eight points each led the Frostburg attack while Kirk, Jones and Barham had seven tallies apiece.

Orioles Buy Hurler For Trade Purposes

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4 (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles announced today the purchase of Pitcher George McPhail, a 24-game winner in Class C competition, but said he probably won't even train with the club next spring.

Owner Jack Dunn said the International League Orioles obtained the 26-year-old righthanded pitcher from Schenectady of the Eastern League in a straight cash deal. Last year he won 24 and lost 8 with Pittsfield of the Class C Canadian-American League.

Dunn said that, despite his impressive record, McPhail will most likely be used as trading material for an infielder.

Sugar Receives Award, Also Parking Ticket

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (INS) — Middleweight boxing champion Sugar Ray Robinson received Sport magazine's "athlete of the year" award for 1951 today at a luncheon at Toots Shors.

20,000 Expected At Mobile Game Today

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 4 (AP)—Fifty college football stars—including six All-Americas — make a slippery transition tomorrow from amateurism to professionalism.

The site will be a soggy, rain loaded field in Mobile in a game growing in importance by the year —the Senior Bowl.

Here in early January each year the final college game of the season is played. When players trot on the field their rating is as pure amateur as possible in the sense of subsidized college football.

When they leave the field they're professionals. Members of the winning team are "tainted" with $500 hard earned money. Members of the losing team get $400 each.

Flopped Financially

Two previous Senior Bowls flopped financially. The first was played in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1950.

Last January after the contest had been moved to Mobile, interest, fans and necessary operating cash increased—but not enough. A new Mobile group bought out the old Nashville, Tenn., owners.

This year?—local sponsors have their fingers crossed, their hopes up and their pocketbooks open. This game guarantees players their earnings, and sponsors are ready to make their word good with other funds should ticket sales fail to provide the treasury. A crowd of 20,000, which is a good possibility, would please everybody.

Neither earlier game lacked anything in the way of good, fan appealing football. The South won both games, by 22-13 and 19-18.

This year's squads—called North and South for convenience sake only—are collections of as good college talent as anybody will see on one field.

North Is Favored

South All-America second teamers are back Jim Dooley, Miami; Quarterback Babe Parilli, Kentucky; Quarterback Bill Wade, Vanderbilt; Tackle Bob Werckle, Vanderbilt, and Ted Daffer, Tennessee. Daffer was on the first All-America team of 1950.

Regardless of efforts to equalize the strength, the North is about a seven point favorite. The reasons—many Southerners played in bowl games and arrived late; the South is a passing team and recent rains have kept the field soggy and the North has the better line.

The kickoff is at 2:45 p. m. (EST).

No Pro Offers

HONOLULU, Jan. 4 (AP)—Big Bill McColl, Stanford's All-America end, said today he hasn't "given any serious thought to turning professional."

"I've had not offers yet," said McColl when asked about speculation by California sportswriters. He is here for Sunday's College All-Star Hula Bowl football clash with the Hawaii All-Stars.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4—(INS)—Who said Ezio Pinza was washed up in Hollywood because of two poor pictures at MGM? 20th Century-Fox yesterday closed the deal with Pinza's agent, Paul Small, for Mr. South Pacific to be here April 1st to play Feodor Challapin in "Tonight We Sing."

This is the story of world famed impresario Sol Hurok, who has guided the careers of many great artists from Pavlowa to the Sadler's Wells ballet.

Several weeks ago I told you that Tamara Toumanova was set to play Pavlowa and from day to day there will be other castings in this picture which George Jessel is producing.

At one time, George Sanders was touted to play the great Chaliapin—but, if you ask me, Pinza is the perfect choice for the late basso.

At last it's settled. Joan Crawford's leading man in "Sudden Fear" is Walter Jack Palance who was so good being bad (the killer) in "Panic In The Streets."

Although several other actors were in the running, Joan tells me that Palance is the actor she and co-producer, Joe Kaufman, and Director Dave Miller wanted all the time.

A former Pennsylvania miner, football player and prize fighter before turning stage actor, Palance got raves from the movie critics in "Panic" and I hear he is equally good with Alan Ladd in "Shane."

The latest contract star to get permission to go on television is Errol Flynn. He makes his debut with Bud Abbott and Lou Costello on January 13th—and before you ask how come Errol decided to make his first TV appearance with the comedians—I can tell you it's for two good reasons:

First, Bud and Lou and Errol have become good friends.

Second, Errol is under contract to Warner Brothers and Warners are going to release Abbott and Costello's "Jack And The Beanstalk" and their "Captain Kidd" picture with Charles Laughton. In fact, when Abbott and Costello finish their current picture at Universal-International, I believe all their future releases will be through Warners.

Don't underestimate the value of the movies made by the Protestant Film Commission. They play in 30,000 churches and halls throughout the country. Considering that there are only approximately 19,000 movie theatres as outlets for other pictures, that's quite an audience you must admit.

These pictures have definite religious messages—but they are also developed along entertaining lines. James Dunn and Allene Roberts just finished "A Wonderful Life"—the 14th dramatic feature completed by the commission.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Must some wives "share" their husbands?

Answer: Not in the ultimate sense, but the girl who marries a professional man — a clergyman, doctor or attorney—must be ready to accept the fact that she cannot monopolize her husband's interest and attention: to succeed in his work, he will have to be a friend as well as an adviser to the other women who seek his help, and the chances are that some of them will wish him to be more. The fact need cause his wife no concern if he and she love each other. The more women a man has to deal with, the less any one of them is apt to "tempt" him; and besides that, the capacity for friendship and affection is not limited, but grows with use.

Do intelligence tests help psychiatric diagnoses?

Answer: No, writes William Sanford Kogan, V. A. psychologist, in the Journal of General Psychology. In an experiment, two groups of patients, one "clearly" neurotic and the other "clearly" psychotic, but "matched" for age, I. Q. and education, were given the Wechsler-Bellevue Intelligence Test. There was no relation between their scores and their phychiatric diagnosis. For neither neurosis nor schizophrenia is a disorder of the intelligence—both are fundamentally emotional disturbances, and while either may affect a person's willingness to use his intelligence, the extent to which this happens is an individual matter.

Should an alcoholic be treated at home?

Answer: Preferably not, writes Dr. Axel Sjohagen in a Swedish medical journal. Medical and legal authorities in Sweden have developed a system of non-institutional treatment which they call "alcoholic care in freedom." Special homes have been established by the state and by local communities in which alcoholic patients can live and continue at their jobs, thus being able to support their families while enjoying "a wholesome change of environment." The average alcoholic's emotional problems are so much involved in his relations with his family that it may well be helpful for him to take a vacation even from the most affectionate home.

The group left Miami yesterday for a 25-day tour of nine South and Central American countries. The purpose of the tour is to meet and discuss with women who have the same responsibilities and anxieties for the solution of international problems and to foster hemispheric collaboration with a view to maintaining the peace. Forums are being planned to discuss ways and means of bringing about plans for mutual defense and better understanding of common problems. A study also will be made of Latin American culture.

Down in the Valley...

Got thinking the other day about New Year resolutions . . . I came to the conclusion that their main reason for existence is somewhat similar to Christmas toys: They're made to be broken . . . Probably the first to be broken by many of us was the one made in the heat of the New Year's Eve skirmishing, namely the "No more whishkey for me, thash for shure" resolution . . . Even the most stubborn had to have "just one" to celebrate the Sugar Bowl victory by Maryland's Tremendous Terps . . . Wonderful, wasn't it? . . . Teamwork can do miracles, and teamwork is very important at CAS TAYLOR'S, to prepare and serve the tastiest home style meals you've ever eaten . . . And we don't double-team you on the price, either . . . Come "Down in the Valley" for an evening, and we're sure you'll be a steady patron from then on . . .

Federated Club Women Leave On Good Will Tour

Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton, Red Oak, Iowa, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, who is well known by members of the Woman's Civic Club who have attended state meetings, will lead the Third World Cooperation Tour of the federation. Mrs. Houghton was also guest speaker at the district meeting when Mrs. William A. Douglas, LaVale, was elected president.

The group left Miami yesterday for a 25-day tour of nine South and Central American countries. The purpose of the tour is to meet and discuss with women who have the same responsibilities and anxieties for the solution of international problems and to foster hemispheric collaboration with a view to maintaining the peace. Forums are being planned to discuss ways and means of bringing about plans for mutual defense and better understanding of common problems. A study also will be made of Latin American culture.

Down in the Valley...

Got thinking the other day about New Year resolutions . . . I came to the conclusion that their main reason for existence is somewhat similar to Christmas toys: They're made to be broken . . . Probably the first to be broken by many of us was the one made in the heat of the New Year's Eve skirmishing, namely the "No more whishkey for me, thash for shure" resolution . . . Even the most stubborn had to have "just one" to celebrate the Sugar Bowl victory by Maryland's Tremendous Terps . . . Wonderful, wasn't it? . . . Teamwork can do miracles, and teamwork is very important at CAS TAYLOR'S, to prepare and serve the tastiest home style meals you've ever eaten . . . And we don't double-team you on the price, either . . . Come "Down in the Valley" for an evening, and we're sure you'll be a steady patron from then on . . .

Take Someone To Church This Week . . . You'll Both Be Richer For It!

TO INSURE PUBLICATION in Saturday's paper, all church notices must be in The Cumberland News office by 11 o'clock each Thursday night.

Thrilling—that cry! It seems to harness the power of a locomotive to the wheels of time.

Ominous, though! It is a solemn reminder that opportunities which are allowed to pass can never be overtaken.

Next Sunday, in many a church across the land, the sexton will glance at his watch, then raise his hand to toll the tower-bell—a peal both thrilling and ominous.

For in Church a man can link his soul to the ageless, eternal Truth. And the deep, stirring experience will carry him into new adventures in happy, fruitful living.

Such an opportunity no man may lightly let pass. It is the road to peace and blessing for ALL.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Fruit Growers Seek Funds For Crop Research

$10,000 For Study At U. Of Md. Seen

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 4 (AP)—Maryland fruit growers urged the state today to provide more money for crop research.

Members of the Maryland Horticulturel Society resolved to specifically ask for $10,000 for research by the University of Maryland on effects of weather on fruits and vegetables.

They also requested increased funds for the University's Experimental Laboratory in Hancock, but mentioned no amount.

Charles O. Dunbar, director of the laboratory, advised the 200 horticulturists to grow new varieties and different kinds of fruits. He urged peach growers to try new species, especially types which have "eye appeal since appearance plays a big part in the public's buying."

As for diversification of crops, he suggested cherries, raspberries, grapes and plums. The big crops, particularly in Western Maryland, are apples and peaches.

R. S. Dillon Jr. of Hancock was elected president by the society.

Other officers are William C. Maine, Hagerstown, first vice president; Norman Fike, Cordova, second vice president; A. F. Vierheller, University of Maryland, secretary-treasurer.

DONATES BLOOD—Sergeant First Class Donald M. Rhodes, a native of Antioch, Mineral County, W. Va., and a paratrooper with the 82nd Airborne Division was third man in line when the division opened its drive for blood recently. Sfc. Rhodes has been in the Army for five years. He has been a paratrooper with the 82nd at Fort Bragg, N. C., for three years. The sergeant is a tank commander in the 714th Tank Battalion of the division. The blood drives are in response to an urgent request from Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett for men of the armed forces to replace the dangerously low stocks of plasma now on hand for shipment to Korea. All units stationed at Fort Bragg are taking turns meeting the quota.

Inspector Urges Mine Changes

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. — A Federal coal-mine inspector proposes better ventilation, preshift examinations for explosive gas, adequate rock dusting of all dry areas, full compliance with the adopted timbering standards, and other precautions for the safe operation of the Black Beauty Coal Company's Ruth mine, at Shamrock, Somerset County, Pa., in a report released today by the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Inspector Omar Elkins, who visited the 63-man, 350-ton-a-day mine recently, recommended coursing at least 6,000 cubic feet of air a minute through the last open entry crosscuts and directing more air to the working faces. To guard against roof-fall accidents, which caused the deaths of 151 men in the first 6 months of 1951, Elkins urged that safety posts and permanent timbers be set close to the faces of all working places as directed by adopted timbering standards.

Other safety measures advocated included safer storage of explosives underground, eliminating several haulage and electrical dangers, and providing fire-fighting equipment in the mine. Elkins also advised all employees to use approved electric cap lamps for portable illumination, to wear safety-toe shoes, and to discontinue smoking in the mine.

Fruit Growers Seek Funds For Crop Research

$10,000 For Study At U. Of Md. Seen

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Jan. 4 (AP)—Maryland fruit growers urged the state today to provide more money for crop research.

Members of the Maryland Horticulturel Society resolved to specifically ask for $10,000 for research by the University of Maryland on effects of weather on fruits and vegetables.

They also requested increased funds for the University's Experimental Laboratory in Hancock, but mentioned no amount.

Charles O. Dunbar, director of the laboratory, advised the 200 horticulturists to grow new varieties and different kinds of fruits. He urged peach growers to try new species, especially types which have "eye appeal since appearance plays a big part in the public's buying."

As for diversification of crops, he suggested cherries, raspberries, grapes and plums. The big crops, particularly in Western Maryland, are apples and peaches.

R. S. Dillon Jr. of Hancock was elected president by the society.

Other officers are William C. Maine, Hagerstown, first vice president; Norman Fike, Cordova, second vice president; A. F. Vierheller, University of Maryland, secretary-treasurer.

DONATES BLOOD—Sergeant First Class Donald M. Rhodes, a native of Antioch, Mineral County, W. Va., and a paratrooper with the 82nd Airborne Division was third man in line when the division opened its drive for blood recently. Sfc. Rhodes has been in the Army for five years. He has been a paratrooper with the 82nd at Fort Bragg, N. C., for three years. The sergeant is a tank commander in the 714th Tank Battalion of the division. The blood drives are in response to an urgent request from Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett for men of the armed forces to replace the dangerously low stocks of plasma now on hand for shipment to Korea. All units stationed at Fort Bragg are taking turns meeting the quota.

Inspector Urges Mine Changes

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. — A Federal coal-mine inspector proposes better ventilation, preshift examinations for explosive gas, adequate rock dusting of all dry areas, full compliance with the adopted timbering standards, and other precautions for the safe operation of the Black Beauty Coal Company's Ruth mine, at Shamrock, Somerset County, Pa., in a report released today by the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Inspector Omar Elkins, who visited the 63-man, 350-ton-a-day mine recently, recommended coursing at least 6,000 cubic feet of air a minute through the last open entry crosscuts and directing more air to the working faces. To guard against roof-fall accidents, which caused the deaths of 151 men in the first 6 months of 1951, Elkins urged that safety posts and permanent timbers be set close to the faces of all working places as directed by adopted timbering standards.

Other safety measures advocated included safer storage of explosives underground, eliminating several haulage and electrical dangers, and providing fire-fighting equipment in the mine. Elkins also advised all employees to use approved electric cap lamps for portable illumination, to wear safety-toe shoes, and to discontinue smoking in the mine.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Minority Report

"Don't worry about television," Red Skelton advised us in a recent interview. "It's the greatest thing since sliced bread." The trouble with this advice is that I'm paid to worry about television. Red, and I'm especially worried about the "Red Skelton Show" (NBC-TV 10 p. m. EST Sundays) which my friends tell me is phenomenally funny, which enjoys the third highest TV rating in the land and which nevertheless leaves me feeling only tired and depressed.

John Crosby

Tired, especially. Red Skelton is without question the hardest working comic around; he is an engaging fellow with a rubber face which can stretch into an infinite number of shapes for what seems like miles; and he makes almost everyone laugh except me. I don't know why this is, since he's dealing in the most tested material anywhere around.

• — • — •

Last Sunday, for example, he did a pantomime of a girl dressing in the morning — a bit, he assured us, his father did in Hagenbeck's Circus 50 years earlier. This was illuminating information since the ensuing pantomime was, almost to a gesture, an exact replica of Sid Caesar's famous burlesque on the same subject. I suppose this lays Caesar open to the charge of stealing Skelton's father's material 50 years ago which seems hardly likely. Caesar wasn't around that long ago.

Actually all these travesties have been kicking around the vaudeville circuits for decades. They are in the open market for all the comedians. However, this particular one has been perpetrated so ably and so often by Caesar that Skelton, I think, was ill-advised to try and follow him. Caesar has not only made this bit his very own, at least as far as television is concerned, but he's also infinitely funnier and subtler at it, and Skelton was rash to risk a comparison.

The same criticism can be levelled at a lot of his other material. His opening, for example: "A lot of things happened in Los Angeles this week. I won't say it rained out here but a lot of sunshine went down the drain." It didn't go very well, this Hollywood weather joke which belongs to Bob Hope, so Mr. Skelton added: "Right there two writers bit the dust" — a gag apology that belongs to Mr. Berle.

On the most positive side, Skelton has appropriated a lot of comedy routines as his very own. His is conceivably the finest and most finished drunk act on the boards. He can fall down with more authority than anyone since Buster Keaton. Both of these are low comedy achievements of distinction and I would be the last to belittle them.

Skelton is also unique among comedians in that he is his own cast of characters — Clem Caddidlehopper, a rustic of rococo design not seen in these parts since the '80s; Cauliflower McPugg, a punchdrunk pugilist; San Fernando Red, a politician who kisses babies over 18 years of age; and the best known and most obnoxious of his radio characters, the Mean Widdle Kid.

He has also at various times been Hopalong Cassidy and Willie Lump-Lump, Private Eye — all of them resembling Mr. Skelton to great degree. It gives him great scope to don a thousand costumes, to twist his face into endless contortions, to employ a dozen accents, and to do pratfalls — both verbal and physical — in hundreds of interesting variants.

• — • — •

In that way it's very much a one-man show, a dazzling exercise in virtuosity, a technical triumph which leaves the other comedians in the field breathless. But it doesn't leave me breathless. Some defect in my character, I expect, since it is relished by the public to such extent that Mr. Skelton now enjoys a 44 Nielsen rating which is very high indeed.

So much for Mr. Skelton's physical exertions. As to the verbal level of the comedy, it is pretty well summed up by the following exchange:

"How stupid can you get?"

"I don't know. I'm still pretty young."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE YOU ANY POWER?

WHEN you answer your partner's informative or takeout double with a minimum suit bid, he doesn't know whether you have any real strength or not. He can be sure only of a "roof over your bid," since it shows a hand not strong enough to force the side into a game contract if your partner held a minimum doubling hand. After the doubler's next call, it is up to you to find some way, if you can, to show any pretty fair strength you may hold.

	♠ K 6 5 ♥ K Q 10 9 4 ♦ J ♣ 10 9 8 3
♠ 9 8 7 4 ♥ 5 2 ♦ Q 10 9 8 ♣ 6 4 2	N W E S	♠ A 2 ♥ 8 6 3 ♦ K 7 4 2 ♣ A J 7 5
	♠ Q J 10 3 ♥ A J 7 ♦ A 6 5 3 ♣ K Q

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Dbl	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 NT

There was South in a contract which could have been beaten if West, reckoning that the bid showed clubs bottled up, had opened the unbid suit of diamonds. Three tricks in that suit plus two black aces would have totaled five. But an unimaginative West led the 6 of his partner's clubs, so it was easy to take ten tricks after East let the K win that and the spade A was then driven out.

Better bidding, however, would have put North and South into an unbeatable 4-Hearts, which would produce an extra trick. One kibitzer pointed out that South might have tried 3-Hearts after North's 2-Spades, to show three-card support, but that risked being left below game since it would show no club stopper.

Perhaps the fault was North's who after the 1-Spade from South might have bid 3-Hearts to show that, with South holding spades, it looked gamey. That would have advertised his own five-card length in hearts; if South couldn't fit such a suit, there would have been room for South to try 3-Spades in case he held five of them, which North could then raise to game, or for South to try 3-No Trumps if he stopped the minors. As it was, South would have raised the 3-Hearts to 4-Hearts, and there would have been no need for bad defense then to give the pair its game.

Tired, especially. Red Skelton is without question the hardest working comic around; he is an engaging fellow with a rubber face which can stretch into an infinite number of shapes for what seems like miles; and he makes almost everyone laugh except me. I don't know why this is, since he's dealing in the most tested material anywhere around.

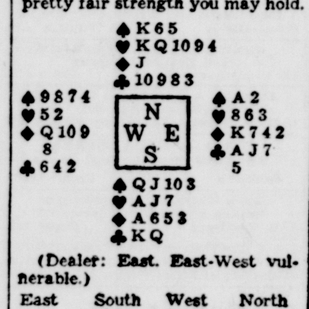
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

HAVE YOU ANY POWER?

WHEN you answer your partner's informative or takeout double with a minimum suit bid, he doesn't know whether you have any real strength or not. He can be sure only of a "roof over your bid," since it shows a hand not strong enough to force the side into a game contract if your partner held a minimum doubling hand. After the doubler's next call, it is up to you to find some way, if you can, to show any pretty fair strength you may hold.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Dbl	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 NT

There was South in a contract which could have been beaten if West, reckoning that the bid showed clubs bottled up, had opened the unbid suit of diamonds. Three tricks in that suit plus two black aces would have totaled five. But an unimaginative West led the 6 of his partner's clubs, so it was easy to take ten tricks after East let the K win that and the spade A was then driven out.

Better bidding, however, would have put North and South into an unbeatable 4-Hearts, which would produce an extra trick. One kibitzer pointed out that South might have tried 3-Hearts after North's 2-Spades, to show three-card support, but that risked being left below game since it would show no club stopper.

Perhaps the fault was North's who after the 1-Spade from South might have bid 3-Hearts to show that, with South holding spades, it looked gamey. That would have advertised his own five-card length in hearts; if South couldn't fit such a suit, there would have been room for South to try 3-Spades in case he held five of them, which North could then raise to game, or for South to try 3-No Trumps if he stopped the minors. As it was, South would have raised the 3-Hearts to 4-Hearts, and there would have been no need for bad defense then to give the pair its game.

Your Weekend Question

If after a claim or concession of tricks, your side has required the declarer to play out the hand, what special reason have you for being unusually careful to think clearly before playing a card on any particular trick?

Farmers Will Discuss Pasture Management

Four States Will Send Representatives

"Pasture Management With New and Old Legumes and Grasses" will be the discussion subject at the annual four-state farmers' meeting which Allegany County farmers will attend in Hagerstown on Friday, January 25.

There will be a full board of farmers and extension specialists leading the discussion with Frederick County (Va.) Agent Fred Stine as panel moderator. Pasture management was chosen because of its importance to all farmers from Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Herman Stockslager, president of the four-state farmers' committee, stated that proper pasture management will give the maximum pasture profit.

All phases of pasture management will be covered, including discussions on the combinations of the most valuable grasses and legumes, kinds and types of fertilizers that produce maximum yields, rotation of animals in pasture, making grass silage, time and rate of seeding, and clipping of pastures.

Among panel members will be such noted agriculturists as J. C. Cunningham, director of the Reyman Memorial Farm, West Virginia University; Stanley Stabler, extension agronomist from the University of Maryland; George Stouffer, winner of the 1951 Maryland Pasture Awards Contest, and F. Loyola Declines $60,000 Offer To Continue Football

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP)—Loyola University of Los Angeles—despite offers of $60,000 in aid—declined tonight to continue football next fall.

Rev. Lorenzo M. Malone, S. J., vice president of the university, issued the following statement:

"Loyola University wishes to sincerely thank the alumni, fans and well-wishers who so generously offered financial support to the university to carry on in intercollegiate football. It is with regret that during the existing emergency intercollegiate football will be discontinued."

"In the past three years, the university enrollment has dropped over 500—income as a result has declined over $200,000. At the present time to carry on at the university we must match every dollar we receive from students with more than a dollar from all other sources X X X.

"In view of these realities, Loyola leaves the field of intercollegiate football competition for the present, but will continue to carry its intercollegiate contests in basketball, baseball, tennis and golf."

Gratitude also was extended to Coach Jordan Olivar and his staff, who now are free to seek other posts. Olivar has been reported in line for the head coaching job at the University of Arizona.

Christenberry Warns Against Unlicensed Boxing Managers

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Chairman Robert Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission today warned boxers against "secret or unlicensed" managers and reminded them that a manager's cut can be no more than one-third of a fighter's take.

Christenberry reviewed the rules on the subject as he approved new contracts between fighters and managers at the first 1952 meeting.

"The commission will not tolerate any secret or unlicensed partners in these contracts," said Christenberry.

"We are trying to rid boxing of any unwholesome taint and these rules were designed to protect the sport against certain undesirable elements who might secretly creep through the side doors."

Michelosen Boomed As New Pitt Coach

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 4 (AP)—Athletic Director Tom Hamilton, seeking a new football coach for the University of Pittsburgh, sits down with the athletic committee again tomorrow to ponder the town's favorite subject—"who'll be Pitt's new grid mentor?"

The latest wrinkle is the "Johnny Michelosen for coach" boom by a group of Pittsburgh radio sportscasters and graduates.

Johnny resigned as coach of the National Football League Pittsburgh Steelers under an ultimatum by the owners at the end of the 1951 campaign.

Dale Dodrill Signs Pittsburgh Contract

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 4 (AP)—Dale Dodrill, 210-pound guard, returned his signed 1952 contract to the National Football League Pittsburgh Steelers today.

Dodrill, who played only part of last season, is the first Steeler to sign.

Farmers Will Discuss Pasture Management

Four States Will Send Representatives

"Pasture Management With New and Old Legumes and Grasses" will be the discussion subject at the annual four-state farmers' meeting which Allegany County farmers will attend in Hagerstown on Friday, January 25.

There will be a full board of farmers and extension specialists leading the discussion with Frederick County (Va.) Agent Fred Stine as panel moderator. Pasture management was chosen because of its importance to all farmers from Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Herman Stockslager, president of the four-state farmers' committee, stated that proper pasture management will give the maximum pasture profit.

All phases of pasture management will be covered, including discussions on the combinations of the most valuable grasses and legumes, kinds and types of fertilizers that produce maximum yields, rotation of animals in pasture, making grass silage, time and rate of seeding, and clipping of pastures.

Among panel members will be such noted agriculturists as J. C. Cunningham, director of the Reyman Memorial Farm, West Virginia University; Stanley Stabler, extension agronomist from the University of Maryland; George Stouffer, winner of the 1951 Maryland Pasture Awards Contest, and F. F. Curtis, former county agent and now a leading farmer in Orange County, Va.

Two well-known farm specialists, B. H. Wilson, manager of the King's Ranch Buck and Doe Run Valley Farms, near Coatesville, Pa., and Lawrence Crowther, farm manager from Jefferson County, W. Va.

A business session will follow the program, with Miss Mary Margaret Smith, R. N., presiding.

Loyola Declines $60,000 Offer To Continue Football

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP)—Loyola University of Los Angeles—despite offers of $60,000 in aid—declined tonight to continue football next fall.

Rev. Lorenzo M. Malone, S. J., vice president of the university, issued the following statement:

"Loyola University wishes to sincerely thank the alumni, fans and well-wishers who so generously offered financial support to the university to carry on in intercollegiate football. It is with regret that during the existing emergency intercollegiate football will be discontinued."

"In the past three years, the university enrollment has dropped over 500—income as a result has declined over $200,000. At the present time to carry on at the university we must match every dollar we receive from students with more than a dollar from all other sources

X X X.

"In view of these realities, Loyola leaves the field of intercollegiate football competition for the present, but will continue to carry its intercollegiate contests in basketball, baseball, tennis and golf."

Gratitude also was extended to Coach Jordan Olivar and his staff, who now are free to seek other posts. Olivar has been reported in line for the head coaching job at the University of Arizona.

Christenberry Warns Against Unlicensed Boxing Managers

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Chairman Robert Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission today warned boxers against "secret or unlicensed" managers and reminded them that a manager's cut can be no more than one-third of a fighter's take.

Christenberry reviewed the rules on the subject as he approved new contracts between fighters and managers at the first 1952 meeting.

"The commission will not tolerate any secret or unlicensed partners in these contracts," said Christenberry.

"We are trying to rid boxing of any unwholesome taint and these rules were designed to protect the sport against certain undesirable elements who might secretly creep through the side doors."

Michelosen Boomed As New Pitt Coach

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 4 (AP)—Athletic Director Tom Hamilton, seeking a new football coach for the University of Pittsburgh, sits down with the athletic committee again tomorrow to ponder the town's favorite subject—"who'll be Pitt's new grid mentor?"

The latest wrinkle is the "Johnny Michelosen for coach" boom by a group of Pittsburgh radio sportscasters and graduates.

Johnny resigned as coach of the National Football League Pittsburgh Steelers under an ultimatum by the owners at the end of the 1951 campaign.

Dale Dodrill Signs Pittsburgh Contract

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 4 (AP)—Dale Dodrill, 210-pound guard, returned his signed 1952 contract to the National Football League Pittsburgh Steelers today.

Dodrill, who played only part of last season, is the first Steeler to sign.

Tri-State Area Slush-Covered By Winter Storm

Snow Turns To Rain As Mercury Rises

The Tri-State area was visited by Old Man Winter again yesterday but his stay was shortlived as snow changed to rain with a rise in temperatures.

Travel was hazardous along the highways during the early part of the evening although it became less dangerous as the thermometer rose slightly.

Chains were required on highways in most parts of the area. No serious mishaps were reported.

Two-Inch Snowfall

Almost two inches of snow fell here and about three inches fell in Garrett County as the snowfall and rain was general throughout the immediate area.

Frostburg and the George's Creek area reported snowfall amounting to nearly two inches and slush also resulted in that area.

No accidents were reported, although motorists put on chains in order to travel the highways.

At Thomas, W. Va., according to a spokesman for the Western Maryland Railway, the snowfall of about two inches practically disappeared last night as the thaw set in. The weather was rainy in that area late last night.

More Traffic Snarls

Cumberland police reported several tie-ups and traffic snarls early last evening before the rain fell. About 1.8 inches of snow fell in Cumberland according to the official weather station at Constitution Park bringing the total amount of snowfall for the season to over 18 inches.

Precipitation here yesterday was .35 inches. The high was 34 degrees and low 25 and at 9 p.m. yesterday the temperature stood at 33 degrees. Forecast for today is mostly cloudy and warmer with rain ending in the morning.

City Cinders Hilly Areas

Snow Operation Shows Improvement

The city's "Operation Snow Removal" almost got its first test yesterday afternoon when about two inches of snow began to fall at about 2:30 p. m.

Street men, out on regular maintenance work and snow and ice removal, went to the warehouse when it became evident that another heavy snowfall might blanket the city.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said there was some delay in getting cinder, sand and salt spreaders on the streets, but by the time the snow stopped, all major hills had been covered, so traffic could move.

There was insufficient snow to plow, and a warm rain and traffic beat much of the snow into slush.

Mrs. Roeder said Charles E. Heller airport superintendent was called to the warehouse as part of the plan, to supervise the snow removal if plowing became necessary.

One problem, Mrs. Roeder said, is the delay which results from loading cinders and salt onto trucks by hand. Mrs. Roeder said she will begin to work out some better method of storing cinders and salt.

Some of the city street men remained on duty until after 9 p. m. and upon being relieved were told to be ready for duty if the snow resumes or a freeze develops.

City firemen were not caught napping when the strom broke.

Fire Chief Virgil Parker said chains were still on at three of the four city fire stations and that the other company was repairing chains for its pumper when the snow began to fall.

The chains were put on at once so that the vehicle would be ready for service on slippery areas.

Chief Parker said chains have been on all of the vehicles for weeks and will remain on for at least two weeks after all of the ice is gone and the unpaved streets dry.

C &P Rate Hike Is Opposed

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company's request for a higher rate was formally opposed today by People's Counsel Joseph Allen and the state and city laws departments.

They filed briefs with the Public Service Commission charging that the company "is not entitled to any increase whatsoever."

Originally the company had asked for $5,500,000 in additional revenue to give it a net increase after taxes of approximately $2,750,000.

Later this request was reduced to a net increase demand of $2,300,000.

Company attorneys also filed a brief in which they repeated arguments before the Commission to the effect that its services must be repriced if it is to "meet problems and increased costs."

The company also pointed to federal income tax increases which they claim total $2,000,000 since rates were last prescribed.

Among objections noted by the city and state were arguments that the company should not use reproduction costs and cash working capital in figuring its base rate, and that the company does not have a proper financial structure as a "wholly owned subsidiary of American Telephone and Telegraph.

J. Walter Byer Files For City Council Post

Primary Campaign Gets Underway Here

The city election campaign got under way yesterday afternoon when J. Walter Byer, manager of the Western Maryland Motor Club and retired Celanese engineer announced he will be a candidate for councilman in the primary election March 4.

Byer, who lives at 36 Greene Street, filed papers yesterday with City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery and was notified that his name will appear on the primary ballot.

He thus became not only the first candidate in the 1952 city election but also the first to file under a law passed by the recent General Assembly, which abolished petitions and set up filing fees of $25 for council candidates and $40 for those seeking the top executive post.

The deadline for filing is February 23, Ullery said.

Resident Since 1920

A native of Newburg, Preston County, W. Va., Byer has been a resident of this city since 1920.

After graduating from Piedmont High School, he learned his trade as an electrician at the Luke plant of the West Virgnia Pulp and Paper Company.

Following a brief period with an electrical construction firm, he began work at the Amcelle plant in 1920. He retired in July, 1949, as field engineer in the electrical department of the plant.

For a number of years, Byer has served as manager of the Western Maryland Motor Club.

He is also a member of the Cumberland Engineers Club, the Cumberland Exchange Club, Cumberland Lodge 63, B. P. O. Elks, and Lodge 271, Loyal Order of Moose.

Is C D Worker

Active in Civil Defense work, he is serving as a CD precinct warden in Precinct 1, Zone 1 of this city.

Wm. Buchholtz Seeks Election As City's Mayor

Finance Commissioner Announces Candidacy

William H. Buchholtz, 713 Fayette Street, city finance commissioner for two terms, last night took his 40th birthday as an occasion to announce his candidacy for mayor of Cumberland in the spring elections.

Thus far, Buchholtz is the first to announce candidacy for mayor. Thomas S. Post, present mayor who is rounding out his fourth consecutive term, announced earlier this week that he will not be a candidate.

Buchholtz, twice elected to council as an independent, has never identified himself with any political machine. As finance commissioner, be observed last night, he has had an opportunity to gain a general knowledge of the operation and inner workings of all departments.

Advocates Home Rule

He believes this experience places him in a position where he can qualify as a chief executive in the city's government, and provide the type of leadership needed to cope with the multitude of civic problems constantly arising.

Buchholtz said he believes there are many reforms needed in government and is a strong advocate of home rule. His record in council shows, he noted, that he has favored home rule for Cumberland and believes, to render the most governmental service to the people, municipal home rule has become a necessity.

He also stated that he favors greater economy in government and believes reforms and economy in government must start at the local or municipal level. He emphasized economy as being of major importance and recalled he voted against the last levy because it included a four-cent tax rate which he believes was not and is not necessary.

Buchholtz, during his four years in office, has streamlined the finance department. New and modern filing systems have been installed, better control established over all accounts, and the office was the first to be modernized and refurnished in many years.

He was instrumental in having the city lend its support to the Industrial Promotion Commission and was one of the first to advocate such a commission. He said he still favors cooperation by municipal officers in any constructive plan which will provide full employment for Cumberland citizens.

Buchholtz said he believes his record in council, as well as the active part he takes in civic affairs, serving on many committees and commissions, amply qualifies him for the office of mayor.

Cites His Program

Specifically he favors the establishment of a classification system under Civil Service to correct inequities in several city departments; home rule for Cumberland; a central purchasing agency and perpetual inventory control to save thousands of dollars; a plan to promote off-the-street parking and relieve traffic congestion, and strict economy in the operation of all phases of city government.

Buchholtz is a veteran of World War II and is affiliated with a number of veteran, civic, patriotic and fraternal organizations. He is married and has one son, William H. Buchholtz, III.

In his regular employment, he has for many years been resident manager of a local sales finance company. He attended LaSalle Institute and the University of Maryland. He is a son of Mrs. Maude Buchholtz, 501 Cumberland Street, and the late William H. Buchholtz.

MAN-MADE TORRENT—Raging waters of the Savage River pour over the spillway of Savage River Dam after a five-day thaw and heavy rains swelled the stream far above normal. One of the two main purposes of the huge, multi-million-dollar dam is to hold back sudden crests in the Savage River until flood danger in the Potomac has passed. Then, water is released gradually to soften the impact. On Wednesday, water began running over the spillway for the first time. In other months, the dam is to be used to store water to keep the Potomac's rate of flow up to the normal 93 cubic feet per second. The photo was taken looking down the spillway.

Three Vacancies Are Filled By Rubber Workers

Local 26 Members Will Meet Tonight

Plans for a membership meeting tonight and the filling of three vacancies in the local union were announced yesterday by R. C. Burkhart president of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastics Workers of America (CIO).

The meeting will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the local's new hall at 152 North Mechanic Street.

Lee Layman, Grantsville, chairman of the union's Curing Department, was named to the local's Labor-Management Committee, to succeed Arnold.

Local 26 recently became a member of the 70 Club, the Franklin D. Roosevelt Birthday Memorial. The fund was set up to raise funds to combat infantile paralysis.

Week Of Prayer To Open At South End Churches

Served Local Church

A minister for 50 years, Rev. Brown served the local First Presbyterian Church during the interim between the pastorates of Rev. William A. Eisenberger and Rev. Seth W. Morrow, present pastor.

Rev. Brown also has been active in several Presbyterian Church boards. For many years he was vice president of Princeton Theological Seminary.

He has spent the past 10 years as pastor of Harundale Community Church between Baltimore and Annapolis.

Services will be held nightly, Monday through Friday at 7:30 p. m. at these churches:

Schedule Listed

Tuesday — Southminster Presbyterian, Third and Race streets; subject, "Prayer and Communism."

Wednesday — Grace Methodist, Virginia Avenue; subject, "Prayer and Power."

Thursday — Trinity Methodist, Grand Avenue; subject, "Prayer and Courage."

January Will Have Eleven "Weeks" In Only 31 Days

January will be an unusual month in at least one respect—it's going to have 11 weeks.

That's right — 11. The calendar gives it only four weeks and a few extra days, but America's manufacturers and advertising men are not ones to be daunted by such an outmoded device.

According to a schedule released by one advertising agency, people must struggle through everything from Odorless Decoration Week (January 6-12) to National Crochet Week (January 19-26).

Naturally, there's a little overlapping here and there, but then it's Leap Year and that covers a lot of unorthodox tactics.

But there is a little cheating going on—most of the so-called "weeks" aren't really weeks at all.

Six of the 11 have more than seven days. Four "weeks" have eight days, and then there are such 11-day whoppers as Idaho Potato and Onion Week (January 16-26). But then Idaho covers a lot of territory.

Also in this class is Large Size Week (January 17-27), and it's anybody's guess what that might mean. But the name itself would seem to demand an outsize week.

National Thrift Week (January 17-23) confines itself to a cautiously thrifty seven days, as do Printing Week (January 13-19), Church and Economic Life Week (January 14-20), Youth Week (January 27-February 2), and a few others.

Governor McKeldin has proclaimed January 6-13 as an eight-day Big Brother Week. Jaycee Week also claims eight days (January 14-21).

Another oversize week is National Fur Care Week (January 26-February 2), known in some circles as Federal Mink Coat Week.

District 4-H Meetings Set

Leaders of 4-H Clubs in Allegany and Garrett Counties will attend a district training meeting at the La-Vale Fire Hall at 10 a. m. Saturday, January 26, to gather ideas, inspiration and discuss mutual problems.

This is one of seven meetings to be held amound the state. Leaders from Frederick, Montgomery and Washington Counties will meet in Frederick January 25. Other meetings will be held at Upper Marlboro, Salisbury, Easton, Bel Air and Westminster.

Mylo S. Downey, state boys' club leader, states that the meetings will feature discussions and workshops

Fox Has Played In Music Centers

Playing in concert halls where only master musicians of the world appear in New York, London, Paris, Berlin, Toronto, Chicago and Los Angeles, Virgil Fox has moved the world of music with his organ playing.

The master musician will play a concert at Centre Street Methodist Church at 8:30 p. m. Thursday, January 4, under sponsorship of the Cumberland Choral Society.

Fox has not only conquered communities covering America, but he went into the stronghold of Johann Sebastian Bach — the Thomas Church in Leipzig—and came out victorious. He was acclaimed by the critics as "artist whose playing revealed an understanding of the innermost secret of the art of Bach . . . an unsurpassed virtuoso."

Now only in his thirties, he has given concerts in such renowned churches in Europe as Westminster, Lincoln and Durham Cathedrals, the great Cathedral "Dom" in Berlin, the Buxtehude Church, Marienkirche, Lubeck, the American Church in France and Kings College Chapel in Cambridge.

During the summer of 1950 he gave concerts in Paris, Canterbury, Edinburgh and London. His audiences averages over 1,000 per concert.

W. Va. Bonus Filing Forms Are Explained

Service Officer Lists Types

Some confusion has resulted among veterans, dependents, and other claimants filing for the West Virginia veterans' bonus in this area.

Roland G. Showers, service officer of Knobley Mountain Post No. 136, American Legion, Ridgeley, yesterday gave an explanation of the various forms used in applying for the bonus.

Procedure Noted

Form No. 1, according to Showers, is used by eligible living veterans of both World Wars and information of the veteran's service record is required. An original copy or photostatic copy of discharge papers is necessary. This form is also used by guardians and other legal representatives of incompetent veterans.

Eligible veterans residing outside the state of West Virginia, who qualify for the bonus, must complete one of three sections of a Residency Verification form.

If the veteran died after being discharged from the Armed Forces, a certified copy of the death certificate showing the place and date of death must be submitted with the bonus application.

Death Certificate

On the other hand, if the veteran died while on active duty, the place and date of death must be established by submitting the official notice of death (letter, not a telegram) by the government. Showers said that a certified copy of such official notice will be acceptable. This is accomplished on Form No. 2.

A claim filed by an unremarried widow must be accompanied by a certified copy of her marriage certificate, proving her legal marriage to the veteran. If the widow or the veteran was previously married, evidence of the dissolution of such previous marriages must be submitted in the form of certified death certificates or certified copies of divorce decrees. This may be done on Form No. 3, Showers added.

Claims filed by parents must be accompanied by a certified copy of the veteran's birth certificate, establishing relationship to the veteran. Parents also must submit an "Affidavit of Dependency" and must use West Virginia Bonus Form No. 5 for this purpose.

Forms Run Out

Application forms ran out at Ridgeley the first day of filing, January 2, according to Showers, and he was required to phone to the Veterans Administration in Martinsburg, W. Va. for a new supply.

The steady number of applicants yesterday diminished the temporary supply, Showers added, and more forms are not expected before Monday.

All out-of-state applicants, Showers explained, upon completion of bonus claims, should mail them to W. Va. Department of Veterans' Affairs, P. O. Box 5127, Capital Station, Charleston, W. Va.

Deadline for filing claims for payment of a bonus from the state of West Virginia is December 31, 1952.

Mackey Gives Talk To Insurance Group

Henry A. Mackey, local agent for the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, recently was guest speaker at the annual meeting of that company's Harrisburg Pa. agency. The subject of his talk was "Planning Ahead."

Mackey, who entered the life insurance business five years ago, was individual leader in volume for the company in the state of Maryland. He was presented with an award at the recent annual meeting of the Baltimore agency.

Chemical Plant Work Progresses At Lake Gordon

Quantity Purchases Will Amortize Costs

Modernization of the Chemical building at the Lake Gordon filtration plant is well underway, according to George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company.

Steel for the west section of the building was set yesterday, Hitchcock said. Form work and laying of a concrete floor on the second story of that section will get underway next week.

Changes in the boiler room have been completed during recent weeks.

Is Staff Project

The modernization program on the 1918 building is being done by members of the maintenance staff at the dam according to plans drawn up by Robert T. Regester.

Hitchcock said the work will be completed by the time six additional filters are built. The contract for that work was let to the Hazelwood Construction Company November 26 and a 210 day completion date was set.

The west section will be used to store all dry feed chemicals. The lime, alum and soda ash used in treating the city water will be carried to the third floor by conveyors and fed into the system by gravity.

Hitchcock said the work on the west section should be completed by the end of February.

The east section of the building will be used to store ammonia and chlorine, the wet chemicals used in the water treatment plant.

Will Reduce Costs

Chlorine will be fed into the system from one-ton containers, instead of present 150-pound tanks. Saving on the cost of chlorine purchased in eight-ton lots, he added, will be sufficient to amortize the cost of the entire building in five years.

Better quality water, Hitchcock said, will result from the new system, since it will be possible to add chlorine to the water both before and after it is filtered.

Modern manifold controls, he added, will allow more exact controls on materials used to treat the water.

The work is necessarily slow, Hitchcock said, since it must be done without interrupting the normal operation of the plant.

Father Of Area Soldier Receives Son's Decoration

John C. Wilt Wins Medal Posthumously

The father of a Garrett County soldier who died in Korea has been presented the Bronze Star Medal, which was awarded posthumously to his son.

Maryland Military District Headquarters yesterday announced the award to the late Cpl. John T. Wilt of Swanton. The medal was presented to his father, Michael C. Wilt, Route 2, Swanton.

A citation accompanying the medal reports that Cpl. Wilt "distinguished himself by heroic action" last January 22 while serving with the Seventh Reconnaissance Company, Seventh Infantry Division.

Wilt's platoon was attacked by massed enemy troops early on the morning of January 22. The Reds all but surrounded the American perimeter, and a few fought their way in to cut telephone lines to the unit's outposts, leaving them cut off from the lines.

"Cpl. Wilt," reads the citation, "on his own initiative, voluntarily and with utter disregard for his own safety started out alone to locate the breaks and repair the lines.

"Moving out into the midst of enemy raiding parties he was continually being fired upon by these groups as he repaired the breaks in the lines until he was seriously wounded and unable to move any further.

"Cpl. Wilt's actions were responsible for the reestablishment of communication to the outposts and enabled the unit to repulse the attack. His actions on this occasion reflect great credit on himself and the military service."

Twigg Fined In Hit-Run Crash

Douglas E. Twigg, Pattersons Creek, W. Va., paid a $10 fine and costs after he pleaded guilty to a hit-run charge yesterday in an accident involving a Cumberland man's car.

West Virginia State Police Cpl. O. G. Webley said Twigg's car sideswiped a car driven by Vernon Paul Shrout, 703 Lincoln Street, on a curve on Old Furnace Road late Thursday night and failed to stop.

Webley said Shrout turned his car around in pursuit of Twigg, caught up with him a quarter of a mile beyond the scene and detained him until Webley arrived.

Held in Mineral County Jail overnight, Twigg entered his guilty plea at a hearing yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Kirk K. Mawhinney in Keyser.

Shrout is home on rotation from service with the Army in Korea. With him at the time was James Kilroy, 616½ Frederick Street. No one was injured in the collision.

HERO'S WIDOW RECEIVES MEDAL—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Jackson, Route 1, Frostburg, receives the Distinguished Service Cross and Certificate, second highest award the country can bestow on its military heroes, in the name of her husband, Pfc. William Robert Jackson. The posthumous award was authorized by the President after Pfc. Jackson was killed last February 9 in Korea when hordes of enemy soldiers overran his company's position. A machine gunner, Jackson remained in an exposed position to cover his unit's withdrawal. When the position was retaken, Jackson's buddies found that his withering fire had accounted for more than 150 enemy soldiers. Presenting the certificate to Mrs. Jackson is Col. Arthur L. Shreve, chief of the Maryland Military District.

Buchholtz said he believes there are many reforms needed in government and is a strong advocate of home rule. His record in council shows, he noted, that he has favored home rule for Cumberland and believes, to render the most governmental service to the people, municipal home rule has become a necessity.

He also stated that he favors greater economy in government and believes reforms and economy in government must start at the local or municipal level. He emphasized economy as being of major importance and recalled he voted against the last levy because it included a four-cent tax rate which he believes was not and is not necessary.

Buchholtz, during his four years in office, has streamlined the finance department. New and modern filing systems have been installed, better control established over all accounts, and the office was the first to be modernized and refurnished in many years.

He was instrumental in having the city lend its support to the Industrial Promotion Commission and was one of the first to advocate such a commission. He said he still favors cooperation by municipal officers in any constructive plan which will provide full employment for Cumberland citizens.

Buchholtz said he believes his record in council, as well as the active part he takes in civic affairs, serving on many committees and commissions, amply qualifies him for the office of mayor.

Cites His Program

Specifically he favors the establishment of a classification system under Civil Service to correct inequities in several city departments; home rule for Cumberland; a central purchasing agency and perpetual inventory control to save thousands of dollars; a plan to promote off-the-street parking and relieve traffic congestion, and strict economy in the operation of all phases of city government.

Buchholtz is a veteran of World War II and is affiliated with a number of veteran, civic, patriotic and fraternal organizations. He is married and has one son, William H. Buchholtz, III.

In his regular employment, he has for many years been resident manager of a local sales finance company. He attended LaSalle Institute and the University of Maryland. He is a son of Mrs. Maude Buchholtz, 501 Cumberland Street, and the late William H. Buchholtz.

MAN-MADE TORRENT—Raging waters of the Savage River pour over the spillway of Savage River Dam after a five-day thaw and heavy rains swelled the stream far above normal. One of the two main purposes of the huge, multi-million-dollar dam is to hold back sudden crests in the Savage River until flood danger in the Potomac has passed. Then, water is released gradually to soften the impact. On Wednesday, water began running over the spillway for the first time. In other months, the dam is to be used to store water to keep the Potomac's rate of flow up to the normal 93 cubic feet per second. The photo was taken looking down the spillway.

January Will Have Eleven "Weeks" In Only 31 Days

January will be an unusual month in at least one respect—it's going to have 11 weeks.

That's right — 11. The calendar gives it only four weeks and a few extra days, but America's manufacturers and advertising men are not ones to be daunted by such an outmoded device.

According to a schedule released by one advertising agency, people must struggle through everything from Odorless Decoration Week (January 6-12) to National Crochet Week (January 19-26).

Naturally, there's a little overlapping here and there, but then it's Leap Year and that covers a lot of unorthodox tactics.

But there is a little cheating going on—most of the so-called "weeks" aren't really weeks at all.

Six of the 11 have more than seven days. Four "weeks" have eight days, and then there are such 11-day whoppers as Idaho Potato and Onion Week (January 16-26). But then Idaho covers a lot of territory.

Also in this class is Large Size Week (January 17-27), and it's anybody's guess what that might mean. But the name itself would seem to demand an outsize week.

National Thrift Week (January 17-23) confines itself to a cautiously thrifty seven days, as do Printing Week (January 13-19), Church and Economic Life Week (January 14-20), Youth Week (January 27-February 2), and a few others.

Governor McKeldin has proclaimed January 6-13 as an eight-day Big Brother Week. Jaycee Week also claims eight days (January 14-21).

Another oversize week is National Fur Care Week (January 26-February 2), known in some circles as Federal Mink Coat Week.

Mylo S. Downey, state boys' club leader, states that the meetings will feature discussions and workshops

Fox Has Played In Music Centers

Playing in concert halls where only master musicians of the world appear in New York, London, Paris, Berlin, Toronto, Chicago and Los Angeles, Virgil Fox has moved the world of music with his organ playing.

The master musician will play a concert at Centre Street Methodist Church at 8:30 p. m. Thursday, January 4, under sponsorship of the Cumberland Choral Society.

Fox has not only conquered communities covering America, but he went into the stronghold of Johann Sebastian Bach — the Thomas Church in Leipzig—and came out victorious. He was acclaimed by the critics as "artist whose playing revealed an understanding of the innermost secret of the art of Bach... an unsurpassed virtuoso."

Now only in his thirties, he has given concerts in such renowned churches in Europe as Westminster, Lincoln and Durham Cathedrals, the great Cathedral "Dom" in Berlin, the Buxtehude Church, Marienkirche, Lubeck, the American Church in France and Kings College Chapel in Cambridge.

During the summer of 1950 he gave concerts in Paris, Canterbury, Edinburgh and London. His audiences averages over 1,000 per concert.

W. Va. Bonus Filing Forms Are Explained

Service Officer Lists Types

Some confusion has resulted among veterans, dependents, and other claimants filing for the West Virginia veterans' bonus in this area.

Roland G. Showers, service officer of Knobley Mountain Post No. 136, American Legion, Ridgeley, yesterday gave an explanation of the various forms used in applying for the bonus.

Procedure Noted

Form No. 1, according to Showers, is used by eligible living veterans of both World Wars and information of the veteran's service record is required. An original copy or photostatic copy of discharge papers is necessary. This form is also used by guardians and other legal representatives of incompetent veterans.

Eligible veterans residing outside the state of West Virginia, who qualify for the bonus, must complete one of three sections of a Residency Verification form.

If the veteran died after being discharged from the Armed Forces, a certified copy of the death certificate showing the place and date of death must be submitted with the bonus application.

Death Certificate

On the other hand, if the veteran died while on active duty, the place and date of death must be established by submitting the official notice of death (letter, not a telegram) by the government. Showers said that a certified copy of such official notice will be acceptable. This is accomplished on Form No. 2.

A claim filed by an unremarried widow must be accompanied by a certified copy of her marriage certificate, proving her legal marriage to the veteran. If the widow or the veteran was previously married, evidence of the dissolution of such previous marriages must be submitted in the form of certified death certificates or certified copies of divorce decrees. This may be done on Form No. 3, Showers added.

Claims filed by parents must be accompanied by a certified copy of the veteran's birth certificate, establishing relationship to the veteran. Parents also must submit an "Affidavit of Dependency" and must use West Virginia Bonus Form No. 5 for this purpose.

Forms Run Out

Application forms ran out at Ridgeley the first day of filing, January 2, according to Showers, and he was required to phone to the Veterans Administration in Martinsburg, W. Va. for a new supply.

The steady number of applicants yesterday diminished the temporary supply, Showers added, and more forms are not expected before Monday.

All out-of-state applicants, Showers explained, upon completion of bonus claims, should mail them to W. Va. Department of Veterans' Affairs, P. O. Box 5127, Capital Station, Charleston, W. Va.

Deadline for filing claims for payment of a bonus from the state of West Virginia is December 31, 1952.

Mackey Gives Talk To Insurance Group

Mackey, who entered the life insurance business five years ago, was individual leader in volume for the company in the state of Maryland. He was presented with an award at the recent annual meeting of the Baltimore agency.

Chemical Plant Work Progresses At Lake Gordon

Quantity Purchases Will Amortize Costs

Modernization of the Chemical building at the Lake Gordon filtration plant is well underway, according to George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company.

Steel for the west section of the building was set yesterday, Hitchcock said. Form work and laying of a concrete floor on the second story of that section will get underway next week.

Changes in the boiler room have been completed during recent weeks.

Is Staff Project

The modernization program on the 1918 building is being done by members of the maintenance staff at the dam according to plans drawn up by Robert T. Regester.

Hitchcock said the work will be completed by the time six additional filters are built. The contract for that work was let to the Hazelwood Construction Company November 26 and a 210 day completion date was set.

The west section will be used to store all dry feed chemicals. The lime, alum and soda ash used in treating the city water will be carried to the third floor by conveyors and fed into the system by gravity.

Hitchcock said the work on the west section should be completed by the end of February.

The east section of the building will be used to store ammonia and chlorine, the wet chemicals used in the water treatment plant.

Will Reduce Costs

Chlorine will be fed into the system from one-ton containers, instead of present 150-pound tanks. Saving on the cost of chlorine purchased in eight-ton lots, he added, will be sufficient to amortize the cost of the entire building in five years.

Better quality water, Hitchcock said, will result from the new system, since it will be possible to add chlorine to the water both before and after it is filtered.

Modern manifold controls, he added, will allow more exact controls on materials used to treat the water.

The work is necessarily slow, Hitchcock said, since it must be done without interrupting the normal operation of the plant.

Father Of Area Soldier Receives Son's Decoration

John C. Wilt Wins Medal Posthumously

The father of a Garrett County soldier who died in Korea has been presented the Bronze Star Medal, which was awarded posthumously to his son.

Maryland Military District Headquarters yesterday announced the award to the late Cpl. John T. Wilt of Swanton. The medal was presented to his father, Michael C. Wilt, Route 2, Swanton.

A citation accompanying the medal reports that Cpl. Wilt "distinguished himself by heroic action" last January 22 while serving with the Seventh Reconnaissance Company, Seventh Infantry Division.

Wilt's platoon was attacked by massed enemy troops early on the morning of January 22. The Reds all but surrounded the American perimeter, and a few fought their way in to cut telephone lines to the unit's outposts, leaving them cut off from the lines.

"Cpl. Wilt," reads the citation, "on his own initiative, voluntarily and with utter disregard for his own safety started out alone to locate the breaks and repair the lines.

"Moving out into the midst of enemy raiding parties he was continually being fired upon by these groups as he repaired the breaks in the lines until he was seriously wounded and unable to move any further.

"Cpl. Wilt's actions were responsible for the reestablishment of communication to the outposts and enabled the unit to repulse the attack. His actions on this occasion reflect great credit on himself and the military service."

Twigg Fined In Hit-Run Crash

Douglas E. Twigg, Pattersons Creek, W. Va., paid a $10 fine and costs after he pleaded guilty to a hit-run charge yesterday in an accident involving a Cumberland man's car.

West Virginia State Police Cpl. O. G. Webley said Twigg's car sideswiped a car driven by Vernon Paul Shrout, 703 Lincoln Street, on a curve on Old Furnace Road late Thursday night and failed to stop.

Webley said Shrout turned his car around in pursuit of Twigg, caught up with him a quarter of a mile beyond the scene and detained him until Webley arrived.

Held in Mineral County Jail overnight, Twigg entered his guilty plea at a hearing yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Kirk K. Mawhinney in Keyser.

Shrout is home on rotation from service with the Army in Korea. With him at the time was James Kilroy, 616½ Frederick Street. No one was injured in the collision.

HERO'S WIDOW RECEIVES MEDAL—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Jackson, Route 1, Frostburg, receives the Distinguished Service Cross and Certificate, second highest award the country can bestow on its military heroes, in the name of her husband, Pfc. William Robert Jackson. The posthumous award was authorized by the President after Pfc. Jackson was killed last February 9 in Korea when hordes of enemy soldiers overran his company's position. A machine gunner, Jackson remained in an exposed position to cover his unit's withdrawal. When the position was retaken, Jackson's buddies found that his withering fire had accounted for more than 150 enemy soldiers. Presenting the certificate to Mrs. Jackson is Col. Arthur L. Shreve, chief of the Maryland Military District.
